Governor Orders Chessman Stay In Face Of Protests

Telegram From U.S. State Dept. Brings Reprieve

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California's governor, stirred by world reaction and a telegram from the U.S. State Department, spared Caryl Chessman's life Friday when he was less than 10 hours and a dozen steps from death in the gas chamber.

SENT TELEGRAM — Roy R. Rubottom, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, sent the telegram to Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California that played a vital part in Caryl Chessman's reprieve yesterday.

Eighth Stay
It was the eighth stay in 12 years for the 38-year-old Chessman, under a double death sentence since 1948 from Los Angeles for lovers' lane crimes which included sex depravity but no loss of life.

Gov. Brown, who previously had refused clemency, said he took the action:

1. After a telegram from the U.S. State Department said there might be hostile demonstrations during President Eisenhower's visit to Uruguay and Brazil if Chessman were executed.

2. Because he wants the State Legislature, which meets Feb. 29 to consider doing away with the death penalty.

Brown told a news conference Friday he gave great weight in his decision to a telegram from Asst. Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom Jr., adding: "Between you and me it was the hand of God."

It was among thousands of telegrams the governor received Thursday. There were far too many to open quickly, and "It was the hand of God that this one would be picked out after I left the office," Brown said.

Appeals Pour In
"I weighed this execution against its proposed effect on what we are doing throughout the entire world."

Appeals have poured in from all over the world asking that Chessman's life be spared, largely on the contention his nearly 12 years on death row was punishment enough for a crime not involving a death.

Friday, the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, which had joined in the plea for mercy, commented on the reprieve: "No human heart can believe that the convict's existence in death row

Danish Premier Hansen Dies

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Danish Premier Hans C. Hansen, 53, son of a shoemaker, died Friday night.

Hansen, leader of the dominant Socialist party, was rushed to Copenhagen's National Hospital Dec. 29 suffering from pleurisy. A year earlier he had been operated on for a throat tumor.

There was no immediate word from the hospital on the cause of death, but well-informed sources said it was reported to have been lung cancer.

King Frederick IX named Hansen premier in January 1955 after Hans Hedtoft died in office. Hansen had served as foreign minister under Hedtoft and continued to hold the ministry until 1958.

Viggo Kampmann, minister of finance and like Hansen a Socialist, is slated to become premier. He has been serving as acting leader of the government since Hansen was hospitalized.

Hansen was the only real vote-getter among the Socialist leaders and his death may give a sharp advantage to the big non-Socialist bloc of Agrarians and Conservatives. Parliamentary elections are scheduled to be held this year, possibly in the spring.

U.S. Defense Facts Said Misleading

Symington Again Levels Charge In Senate Speech

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The charge that President Eisenhower called despicable—that his administration has misled the American people about their defensive strength—was renewed in the Senate Friday.

It was made again by Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), one of the most persistent critics of administration defense policies, and it touched off a free-wheeling debate with Republicans pitted against Democrats.

Symington, declaring "some unpleasant facts well-known to the Communists are kept from the American people," said the people of this country are entitled to the truth.

Disservice To Country
"Above all, they are entitled not to be misled by false statements," he said.

"It is a disservice to our country to suggest that the facts are as we wish they were, rather than as they are."

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who like Symington is a potential candidate for this year's Democratic presidential nomination, joined in the attack.

Johnson said facts about U.S. defenses have not been presented accurately to the public.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) charged that, "The administration put a balanced budget ahead of a balanced national defense." Symington said he agreed.

Symington said an "absolute minimum" of 2½ billion dollars should be added to the 41-billion-dollar defense budget.

Eisenhower, who hotly denied similar charges at his news conference last Wednesday, will have an opportunity to discuss the matter further in a 15-minute radio-TV speech he is scheduled to make at 6:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time Sunday.

Has No Comment
For the time being, the White House said it had no comment.

The administration defense was led in Friday's Senate debate by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, senior Republican on the Armed Services Committee.

Saltonstall flatly denied that Eisenhower or any top defense officials ever intended to mislead the public about relative U.S.-Soviet military strength.

He also rejected Democratic contentions that this country's defenses had been sacrificed in an effort to cut spending or balance the budget.

Christie Mystery Play Sets Record

LONDON (AP) — Agatha Christie's mystery play, "The Mousetrap," already the longest-running production in London theater history, reached its 3,000th performance Friday. It opened Nov. 25, 1952. In April, 1958, it topped 2,238 performances and thus smashed the record previously held by "Chu-Chin-Chow."

FDA has banned use of 14 coal tar colors, used in most lipsticks, on the ground they caused injury, and in some cases death, to laboratory rats. The ban has been held up pending outcome of the current hearings.

Gale Winds, Heavy Snows Pound Northeast States

By The Associated Press

Gale winds and heavy snow staggered traffic and snapped power lines in stormy sections of the Northeast Friday.

The snow shut down a 175-mile stretch of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, and forced hundreds of motorists to seek refuge in restaurants.

The biggest tieup was in the Somerset area, where up to 1½ feet of snow was reported.

Many roads, from Maryland to Maine, were blocked.

Telephone and power lines broke under the weight of snow. More than 100,000 homes in New Jersey were cut off from electricity and communication.

About half of the 3,200 homes in Meyersdale, Pa., were without light and power.

Many schools were closed in the huge snow belt.

A plane crashed in Paterson, N.J., killing two occupants.

Parked Cars Under White Blanket

Automobiles parked in front of the Garrett National Bank on the main street in Oakland are "snowed under" in the wake of the heavy snowstorm which struck in Garrett County Thursday and early yesterday. Snowplows have cleared the street for traffic, piling much of the snow atop the parked vehicles which could not be moved. Heavy icicles hang from adjoining buildings as the white blanket covers nearly everything in sight. The county seat has started to "dig out." (See back page.)

Lipstick Tar Is Considered Very Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government pharmacologist Friday described as very dangerous for any human consumption a coal tar color, known as Orange 17, caused marked blood changes in laboratory rats. He said he had not seen similar changes in more than three other substances among more than 1,000 he has tested in his 20 years with the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. O. Garth Fitzhugh said the color, known as Orange 17, caused marked blood changes in laboratory rats. He said he had not seen similar changes in more than three other substances among more than 1,000 he has tested in his 20 years with the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Fitzhugh, who was in charge of lipstick color tests conducted by FDA, has been the major FDA expert witness since public hearings on 14 coal tar colors used in lipsticks began three days ago. The hearings recessed at noon until Tuesday.

Earlier, the industry called on a German biochemist, who testified he had done experiments on some "kissproof" lipsticks. He said his tests indicated their color dye did not penetrate down into the living tissue of the lips.

The same would probably be true for other lipstick colors, said Dr. Otto K. Jacobi, research director of Kolmar Laboratories, Wiesbaden, Germany. All of his testimony was stricken from the record as irrelevant but permitted to be appended as "an offer of truth."

Howard and Vaughan Clarke, 19, started a 104-mile walking race to see who would win Jean Gowan, a girl who couldn't make up her mind.

Police said the twins had reached Colwyn Bay, about 20 miles along the way, when Vaughan was grabbed by the students, packed into a waiting car, and taken off.

His brother, Howard, then quit the race.

Local Welsh folk hinted the whole thing might have been a hoax.

They pointed out that Friday was the end of Rag Week at the University College of Bangor, where both the twins and Miss Gowan are students. All three previously had denied it was a prank.

Prince To Open N.Y. Exhibition

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, will visit New York June 10 to open a British exhibition, Buckingham Palace announced Friday night. The prince will go to New York from Canada. He is due in Ottawa and Toronto June 8 and 9 to prepare for a conference on British Commonwealth industrial studies to be held in Canada in 1962.

Bomb Is Found
MADRID, Spain (AP)—Spanish police Friday reported finding another unexploded time bomb, the sixth since Thursday. A special police guard found the homemade device on a window sill of the famous Prado Museum.

U.S. Admits Cuba Raider Based Here

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, with a red face, admitted Friday that a small private plane had raided Cuba from a U.S. airfield. It apologized to Prime Minister Fidel Castro, but not further identified.

He said the occupants, both named them as Robert Ellis Frost of Portland, Ore., and Robert U. S. airfield. It apologized to Kelly of the U.S. Civil Air Patrol, but not further identified.

Castro called for an end to this kind of action by raiders, who, he said, had destroyed 225,000 tons of sugar cane in 30 attacks this year.

The State Department ordered the U.S. diplomat remaining in Havana, Daniel Braddock, to express to the Cuban government its regrets that the plane managed to escape the vigilance of our intensified aerial patrols in Florida.

Washington acted quickly after its own check had confirmed a new Castro allegation about U.S.-based planes fire-bombing Cuban sugar fields.

Castro told a Cuban television audience the little craft had crashed Thursday while attacking a Cuban sugar mill.

Burke Claims Missile Subs Nearly Ready

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Arleigh A. Burke has promised that by the end of this year two nuclear-powered Polaris submarines will be on duty ready to hurl 32 ballistic missiles at targets.

The Navy chief of staff, in closed-door testimony made public in censored form Friday, said he is pressing Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. and the Joint Chiefs of Staff to add six more of the missile submarines to current construction plans. That would bring the authorized total to 21.

Burke testified that two of the powerful underwater mobile missile launchers—each packing 16 ballistic weapons—will be operationally deployed by the end of calendar 1960.

Much of the rest of his timetable for actual operation of the nine Polaris submarines already under construction was deleted as classified military information.

But in a previous public hearing before the same Senate Space and Preparedness subcommittee, Burke said the Navy planned to put three Polaris submarines into operation each year from now on.

In the secret testimony he said this output could be speeded up if the administration asked and Congress granted additional funds immediately.

The first Polaris submarine, named George Washington, is scheduled to make its first complete underwater test shot "in the summertime, late spring or summer," the admiral said.

The Polaris is designed to launch missiles, either submerged or surfaced, for a range of up to 1,200 miles.

Discoverer Is Exploded Over Launching Base

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The troubled Discoverer satellite series Friday had its most spectacular failure — a mighty explosion directly over this space base that had all hands diving for cover from raining debris.

The towering, white two-stage missile veered off course toward populated areas a few seconds after being launched and the Air Force deliberately destroyed it directly over the launch complex.

A huge orange fireball flared in the sky. It was blotted by a mushrooming cloud of black smoke from which sailed missile chunks the size of automobiles.

"Take cover! Take cover! Take cover!" blared the warning over the base loudspeaker.

Officers and men scrambled under tables, trucks and autos. Some stood tensed, looking up, ready to be recovered.

Bells, Guns Signal Nation To Rejoice

Infant Is First Born To Reigning Queen In 103 Years

LONDON (AP)—A baby prince was born Friday to Queen Elizabeth II. Bells, guns, and bonfires signaled the nation's rejoicing at the safe delivery of the child, the first infant born to a reigning British monarch in 103 years.

Both mother and son, Elizabeth's third child, were doing well. The little newcomer becomes second only to his brother, Prince Charles II, in the line of succession to the throne which Elizabeth assumed in 1952. Princess Anne, 9, drops back to third place.

"It's a boy!" exclaimed Prince Philip, grinning happily.

The proud father's words were repeated around the land.

Church Bells Peal
Church bells pealed at this announcement from Buckingham Palace that ended anxiety over a somewhat difficult, 30-hour confinement: "The Queen was safely delivered of a son at 3:30 p.m. today. Her majesty and the infant prince are both doing well."

A crowd of more than 2,000 cheered wildly at the palace gates as a palace official pinned up the handwritten bulletin.

A carnival air swept London. Congratulations — with President Eisenhower's among the first — streamed in.

A ceremonial flag of red, blue and gold—24 feet by 12—replaced the royal standard over the palace to mark the birth of the first baby to a reigning British monarch since Princess Beatrix was born to Queen Victoria in 1857.

A 21-gun salute boomed at Windsor Castle, one of the oldest royal homes. The Royal Navy gave the traditional order "splice the mainbrace," which meant that every navy man got a free tot of rum.

Inside the palace, Prince Philip joined the Queen's physicians and other attendants in a champagne toast.

Name Undisclosed
The baby's weight and his name remained temporarily undisclosed.

The expectation is that he will be named James at his christening in about four weeks. A palace spokesman said there would be no announcement concerning the weight until Saturday.

The mother, expected to rest now for three or four days, is 33.

The birth came more than 30 hours after Queen Elizabeth called in her doctors at the first labor pangs Thursday morning. The birth announcement was signed by obstetrician John Peel, who had spent the night at the palace, and her physicians, Sir John Weir and Lord Evans.

Prince Philip, 38, visited the maternity room overlooking the palace gardens immediately after the birth.

See New Brother
Soon he returned to the Queen with Princess Anne, who had had school lessons as usual at the palace with two young friends. Prince Charles, heir to the throne, was driven in from his boarding school outside London to see his new brother Friday evening.

Assuming Prince Charles eventually gets the throne, grandchildren of his infant brother probably will be the first to bear the royal surname Mountbatten-Windsor, which Elizabeth adopted Feb. 8 for some of her descendants.

The Queen's decision added Prince Philip's name, Mountbatten, to the Queen's own name of Windsor, for her great-grandchildren out of the direct line of succession. Royal princes and princesses in the direct line do not use a surname.

Exos Rocket Fired 430 Miles In Space

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (UPI)—The Air Force fired an Exos rocket 430 miles up Friday to gather information to fill in gaps in scientists' knowledge of the atmosphere.

The 48-foot rocket rose above the air proving grounds center launch site on Santa Rosa Island after two technical holds.

The nose cone of the rocket carried telemetering devices to send back to earth measurements of cosmic radiation in a narrow band around its maximum altitude.

Resume Duties

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — About 200 workers resumed staff duties under police guard Friday at the Marrakesh Hotel, which was hit by a strike Monday. The hotel is Jamaica's largest and most expensive resort. Among arriving guests Friday were 31 Ford dealers.

Governor Orders Chessman Stay In Face Of Protests

Telegram From U.S. State Dept. Brings Reprieve

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California's governor, stirred by world reaction and a telegram from the U.S. State Department, spared Caryl Chessman's life Friday when he was less than 10 hours and a dozen steps from death in the gas chamber.

A jangling telephone outside the green-walled execution room flashed word at 12:05 a.m. from Gov. Edmund G. Brown in the executive mansion at Sacramento to Warden Fred Dickson: "You can send him back upstairs. I am going to grant him a 60-day reprieve."

Eighth Stay

It was the eighth stay in 12 years for the 38-year-old Chessman, under a double death sentence since 1948 from Los Angeles for lovers' lane crimes which included sex depravity but no loss of life.

Gov. Brown, who previously had refused clemency, said he took the action:

1. After a telegram from the U.S. State Department said there might be hostile demonstrations during President Eisenhower's visit to Uruguay and Brazil if Chessman were executed.

2. Because he wants the State Legislature, which meets Feb. 29 to consider doing away with the death penalty.

Brown told a news conference Friday he gave great weight in his decision to a telegram from Asst. Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom Jr., adding: "Between you and me it was the hand of God."

It was among thousands of telegrams the governor received Thursday. There were far too many to open quickly, and "It was the hand of God that this one would be picked out after I left the office," Brown said.

Danish Premier Hansen Dies

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Danish Premier Hans C. Hansen, 53, son of a shoemaker, died Friday night.

Hansen, leader of the dominant Socialist party, was rushed to Copenhagen's National Hospital Dec. 29 suffering from pleurisy. A year earlier he had been operated on for a throat tumor.

There was no immediate word from the hospital on the cause of death, but well-informed sources said it was reported to have been lung cancer.

King Frederick IX named Hansen premier in January 1955 after Hans Hedtoft died in office. Hansen had served as foreign minister under Hedtoft and continued to hold the ministry until 1958.

Viggo Kampmann, minister of finance and like Hansen a Socialist, is slated to become premier. He has been serving as acting leader of the government since Hansen was hospitalized.

Hansen was the only real vote-getter among the Socialist leaders and his death may give a sharp advantage to the big non-Socialist bloc of Agrarians and Conservatives. Parliamentary elections are scheduled to be held this year, possibly in the spring.

The snow ranged up to 18 inches in the upper Catskills of New York, and 6 to 15 inches in the mountain districts of western and northern New England.

Gale winds reared drifts and caused property damage. Gale warnings were posted from Hatteras, N.C., to Eastport, Maine.

Tides ran several feet higher than normal.

Gusts of more than 65 m.p.h. were recorded in Allentown, Pa.

The Coast Guard reported a vessel ran aground in blinding snow on Ram Island Ledge off the harbor mouth at Portland, Maine.

And still another storm — the latest in a series that have hit the central, eastern and southern regions of the nation—developed in the Southwest.

Snow spread from Nevada and Arizona northeastward into the Central Plains.

State Dept. Act Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) said Friday the State Department's intervention in the Caryl Chessman case was "very questionable procedure."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate he was nonplussed to learn that Asst. Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom Jr. "had injected his office and advice" into the case.

Sen. Gordon Allott (R-Colo.) said that, barring some explanation he was not aware of, he regarded the department's action as unwarranted interference with the judicial processes of a state.

Chessman, condemned to death 12 years ago as a perverted sex kidnaper, was scheduled to die in the San Quentin, Calif., gas chamber Friday but was given a 60-day reprieve by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The governor said he granted the reprieve because a special session of the Legislature is to consider abolition of capital punishment, and because of a telegram from Rubottom saying that execution of Chessman might lead to hostile demonstrations in Uruguay and Brazil during President Eisenhower's forthcoming visit to South America.

LONDON (AP) — A baby prince was born Friday to Queen Elizabeth II. Bells, guns, and bonfires signaled the nation's rejoicing at the safe delivery of the child, the first infant born to a reigning British monarch in 103 years.

Both mother and son, Elizabeth's third child, were doing well.

The little newcomer becomes second only to his brother, Prince Charles II, in the line of succession to the throne which Elizabeth assumed in 1952. Princess Anne, 9, drops back to third place.

"It's a boy!" exclaimed Prince Philip, grinning happily.

Church Bells Peal

Church bells pealed at this announcement from Buckingham Palace that ended anxiety over a somewhat difficult, 30-hour confinement: "The Queen was safely delivered of a son at 3:30 p.m. today. Her majesty and the infant prince are both doing well."

A crowd of more than 2,000 cheered wildly at the palace gates as a palace official pinned up the handwritten bulletin.

A carnival air swept London. Congratulations — with President Eisenhower's among the first — streamed in.

A ceremonial flag of red, blue and gold—24 feet by 12—replaced the royal standard over the palace to mark the birth of the first baby to a reigning British monarch since Princess Beatrice was born to Queen Victoria in 1857.

A 21-gun salute boomed at Windsor Castle, one of the oldest royal homes. The Royal Navy gave the traditional order "splice the mainbrace," which meant that every navy man got a free tot of rum.

Inside the palace, Prince Philip joined the Queen's physicians and other attendants in a champagne toast.

Name Undisclosed

The baby's weight and his name remained temporarily undisclosed. The expectation is that he will be named James at his christening in about four weeks. A palace spokesman said there would be no announcement concerning the weight until Saturday.

The mother, expected to rest now for three or four days, is 33.

The birth came more than 30 hours after Queen Elizabeth called in her doctors at the first labor pangs Thursday morning. The birth announcement was signed by obstetrician John Peel, who had spent the night at the palace, and her physicians, Sir John Weir and Lord Evans.

Prince Philip, 38, visited the maternity room overlooking the palace gardens immediately after the birth.

See New Brother

Soon he returned to the Queen with Princess Anne, who had had school lessons as usual at the palace with two young friends, Prince Charles, heir to the throne, was driven in from his boarding school outside London to see his new brother Friday evening.

Assuming Prince Charles eventually gets the throne, grandchildren of his infant brother probably will be the first to bear the royal surname Mountbatten-Windsor, which Elizabeth adopted Feb. 8 for some of her descendants.

The Queen's decision added Prince Philip's name, Mountbatten, to the Queen's own name of Windsor, for her great-grandchildren out of the direct line of succession. Royal princes and princesses in the direct line do not use a surname.

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (UPI) — The Air Force fired an Exos rocket 430 miles up Friday to gather information to fill in gaps in scientists' knowledge of the atmosphere.

The nose cone of the rocket carried telemetering devices to send back to earth measurements of cosmic radiation in a narrow band around its maximum altitude.

Captain Admits Saying Girl's Death "Suicide"

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston homicide squad captain who arrested Willem van Rie in Lynn Kauffman's shipboard death admitted Friday he had assured the Dutch radio operator she was a suicide. But he denied he ever publicly ruled out murder as the cause of her death.

"Prior to 6 a. m. Sept. 30, was any statement made by you to the defendant to the effect that 'we know it is suicide'?" police Capt. Joseph B. Fallon was asked in cross-examination at Van Rie's murder trial.

"Yes," replied Fallon.

Only after this assurance, the defense brought out, did Van Rie, 31, capitulate and offer an admission that he had been in the American divorcee's cabin and struck her unintentionally. The state says that was on the night Lynn was thrown into Boston Harbor from the Dutch freighter Utrecht.

Fallon testified that the broadcast ships radio operator had made this admission about 6 a. m. Sept. 30 and shortly afterwards was placed under formal arrest. Later, Van Rie recanted the admission.

As a state witness, Fallon testified: "He said he had reason to believe she was pregnant. She had been so quiet for a week prior to their arrival in Halifax."

The two had been lovers during the 44-day voyage of the Utrecht which was bringing Lynn home from the Orient, testimony showed.

Van Rie is on trial for his life. He is accused of beating Miss Kauffman, 23, during a quarrel in her cabin and throwing her into the harbor to drown as the ship left Boston for New York.

Appeals Court To Hear Case

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Court of Appeals Friday decided to consider Frank W. Wilde's status as president of the Anne Arundel County Commissioners.

The court, in an order signed by Chief Judge Frederick W. Byrne, paved the way for an early hearing of the case after being told it affects the financial condition of the county sanitary commission.

The case will be heard the week of March 14.

George R. Hetrich and Robert E. Stephens in their appeal charged that Wilde vacated his seat as a county commissioner when he accepted the position of acting county manager following the resignation of Edward R. Egan last March 31.

Anne Arundel Circuit Judge James MacGill upheld Wilde's right to remain a county commissioner last Aug. 27, but he expressed doubt about the legality of Wilde's dual role as a commissioner and acting county business manager.

Income Tax Check Seen In Payola Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A suggestion that federal income tax collectors take a close look at music record company payments to radio-TV disc jockeys was made Friday as House payola investigators wound up the current phase of their inquiry.

The hearings, which centered this week mainly on Boston, are to be resumed in mid-March.

The suggestion to tax collectors came from Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) after the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee heard testimony by Donald Dumont of Boston, co-owner of the Dumont Record Distributing Corp.

Dumont testified he handed out $8,500 in cash, in addition to gifts of liquor and clothing, to Boston disc jockeys. He said he felt that was the only way of getting an even break for his firm's records, and insisted the payments were for services performed.

Moss said he questioned very strongly whether such payments could be considered legitimate business expenses for income tax purposes.

Record distributors have told the subcommittee they listed payments to disc jockeys on their books as advertising, promotion or selling expenses. They have consistently denied that the payments constituted payola, or undercover payments for plugging songs on the air.

Irving Lewis, New York officer of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, testified that the Internal Revenue Service already had been in touch with his union to determine whether disc jockeys have been reporting those payments.

Some disc jockeys called before the subcommittee have told of including such gifts in their income tax returns.

Butler Charges Breach Of Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.) said Friday to deny $1,600,000 for use in the Maryland stream valley land acquisition program would be a breach of contract by the federal government.

An item including a $1,000,000 loan and $600,000 grant was knocked out of the Interior Department appropriation bill by the House. The money was to have been used in the year starting next July 1.

Butler urged a Senate Appropriations subcommittee to restore the item.

"Maryland has always proceeded in good faith," Butler said, "and fully complied with its obligations undertaken by the 1951 agreement."

Evidence Fight Shapes Up In Motherwell Trial

DOWNIEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Attorneys Friday prepared for a major fight on the type of evidence to be allowed in the trial of Larry Lord Motherwell on a murder charge.

At issue when the case resumes next Tuesday after a five-day recess is whether the prosecution may present a statement made by 72-year-old wealthy Mrs. Pearl Putney, Washington, D.C. widow, to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Castro M. Dabrohus. The defense contends the statement is hearsay.

Motherwell is accused of killing Mrs. Putney while on a transcontinental trip with her in 1958. She disappeared Aug. 15 of that year. Bones believed to be hers were found a year and a day later on a remote logging road in this county.

The case was recessed Wednesday when the prosecution started questioning Mrs. Dabrohus. Superior Judge Warren Steel says he will rule after the trial resumes.

Newsman Dies In Auto Mishap

BALTIMORE (AP) — John S. Armstrong Jr., 71-year-old financial editor of the Baltimore Sun, was killed in a traffic accident Friday.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at the Church of the Good Shepherd in suburban Ruxton. Burial will be in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

Armstrong was waiting to take a bus to work in front of his home in Ruxton, police said, when he was hit by a car. He died just after he was admitted to a hospital.

He was financial editor for all of his 37 years on the Sun. It was Armstrong's only newspaper job. He was with the U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co. in Baltimore for four years before joining the Sun in 1923 and before that had spent 10 years with the U.S. consular service.

Armstrong was born in Tempe, Ariz., and later moved to Wilmington, N.C., before coming to Baltimore in 1908.

He is survived by his widow, Winifred Fitz-Gerald, whom he married in Ireland during his foreign service in Europe; a son, John S. Armstrong III of Scottsdale, Ariz., and a daughter, Mrs. William C. Grant Jr. of Williams-town, Mass.

Senate Signals Squeeze On Rights Foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders signaled Friday for a tightening squeeze next week on Southern senators battling against civil rights measures.

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) told newsmen he plans to start Saturday sessions and to keep the Senate in session somewhat longer each day. It has been averaging about eight hours daily since the debate started Monday.

He also served notice the Senate will have no Washington's Birthday holiday next Monday, that the debate will go on after the traditional reading of Washington's Farewell Address by Sen. Frank E. Moss (D-Utah).

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Republican leader, said steps of this type are required if the Senate is going to overcome Southern resistance and pass a civil rights bill.

The issue was joined when Johnson brought a minor House-passed Stella, Mo., school-leaving bill before the Senate and then announced that civil rights measures could be offered to it as amendments.

Johnson had committed himself last August to bringing civil rights up in the Senate by Feb. 15 even if no bill had been passed by the House or recommended by a Senate committee.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) bitterly assailed this action Friday, saying the Senate is "proceeding in irresponsible disorder meriting national contempt."

"The purpose is to use confusion for enactment of punitive, vindictive, and unconstitutional legislation," he told the Senate.

Byrd was the first of the day's speakers for the Dixie forces, after the Senate had spent more than 3 1/2 hours arguing over national defense.

Governor Orders

was prolonged for another two months only to feel the deadly gas.

A legal authority in the state attorney general's office, Arlo Smith, a deputy, said it would be possible for a jurist to set the new execution date for 61 days from now.

Brown told his news conference that three men due to die in the San Quentin chamber in March will get reprieves and no one will be executed until the Legislature has acted on a bill to abolish capital punishment.

Chessman had just wound up three hours of conversation with Warden Dickson in the special death cell when the telephone call came. He went back and told the prisoner: "Caryl, the governor has granted you a reprieve."

"Warden, you wouldn't kid me, would you?" the denim-clad convict asked incredulously.

"No, I wouldn't kid you about anything like that," Dickson assured.

Chessman stood tense and trembling. "Just a second, let me get myself together," he asked, "because actually I had resigned myself that this is it."

He managed a request that Dickson thank the governor for him—then was led back up to cell 23 on the sixth floor. That is one of two rooms where Chessman has written three published books, a fourth now impounded, and scores of legal briefs in a fight that has gone 15 times to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I think this is the beginning of the end of capital punishment in California," said one of Chessman's attorneys, George T. Davis, on hearing of the governor's action.

Davis, in a previously scheduled television debate Thursday night with a state assemblyman on capital punishment, wound up by appealing personally to the governor.

Earlier, both the U.S. Supreme Court and the California Supreme Court had closed legal doors. The state court, by twice voting 4-3 against clemency, made it impossible for Brown to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. Un-Tass News Agency said Friday the California law, the State Supreme Court must concur with the governor in cases where the condemned person has a previous felony record.

W.Va. Couple, Foster Child Are Missing

PARSONS, W. Va. (UPI) — A Parsons couple which learned last week end that they were to lose their three-year-old foster daughter has been absent from their home here for four days.

A West Virginia Department of Public Assistance case worker reported Friday that Forrest and Edith Isner and the child have not been seen for that period.

State DPA Director Thomas Egbert said in Charleston that case worker Martha Kochenderfer told him she did not know where the couple and child had gone.

The Isners were told last Saturday by Gov. Cecil H. Underwood they must give up the blond-haired youngster they had raised since she was a week old.

And it was at this point that Miss Kochenderfer started visits to the Isners home to become acquainted with little Rosemary.

These visits were to continue until she became accustomed to the child and the child to her and then Rosemary was to be placed in another home with adoptive parents.

Egbert said Friday night that Miss Kochenderfer said it was one of these visits last Tuesday that she found the Isners gone. She said she saw them on Monday.

"We'll just have to wait and see what develops," Egbert said, "one could go away from home if they wished and thus far the Isners have done nothing illegal."

The couple was known to be very upset over the decision by Underwood which came after a long legal battle over the child's custody.

However, Dorothy Allen, child welfare division chief, said the couple was cooperating with the case worker and showed no indication of refusing to give up the child.

Miss Allen said "we are concerned" but don't know whether the Isners are merely visiting friends or relatives or have left town.

In his statement last week, Underwood accused the couple of promoting "an extravagant publicity campaign" to gain public support for their efforts to gain permanent custody of Rosemary.

The governor said "the facts clearly indicate" that the Isners "have not fulfilled their agreements or obligations."

He said that before the child was six-months old, the DPA attempted to place it for adoption and the couple "refused to cooperate."

Prince Charles Reads Of Event

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles first learned there was to be an addition to the royal family from the newspapers.

At that time he was told by his father, Prince Philip, that he was being moved out of the nursery suite at Buckingham Palace which he had shared with his sister, Princess Anne.

"The rooms are needed for another purpose now," Prince Philip told the 11-year-old Prince of Wales, without particularizing. But Prince Charles is an avid newspaper reader—and soon discovered the reason.

Captain Admits Saying Girl's Death "Suicide"

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston homicide squad captain who arrested Willem van Rie in Lynn Kauffman's shipboard death admitted Friday he had assured the Dutch radio operator she was a suicide. But he denied he ever publicly ruled out murder as the cause of her death.

"Prior to 6 a. m. Sept. 30, was any statement made by you to the defendant to the effect that 'we know it is suicide'?" police Capt. Joseph B. Fallon was asked in cross-examination at Van Rie's murder trial.

Dumont testified he handed out $8,500 in cash, in addition to gifts of liquor and clothing, to Boston disc jockeys. He said he felt that was the only way of getting an even break for his firm's records, and insisted the payments were for services rendered.

Moss said he questioned very strongly whether such payments could be considered legitimate business expenses for income tax purposes.

Record distributors have told the subcommittee they listed payments to disc jockeys on their books as advertising, promotion or selling expenses. They have consistently denied that the payments constituted payola, or undercover payments for plugging songs on the air.

Irvine Lewis, New York officer of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, testified that the Internal Revenue Service already had been in touch with his union to determine whether disc jockeys have been reporting such payments.

Some disc jockeys called before the subcommittee have told of including such gifts in their income tax returns.

Butler Charges Breach Of Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.) said Friday to deny $1,600,000 for use in the Maryland stream valley land acquisition program would be a breach of contract by the federal government.

An item including a $1,000,000 loan and $600,000 grant was knocked out of the Interior Department appropriation bill by the House. The money was to have been used in the year starting next July 1.

Butler urged a Senate Appropriations subcommittee to restore the item.

"Maryland has always proceeded in good faith," Butler said, "and fully complied with its obligations undertaken by the 1931 agreement."

Evidence Fight Shapes Up In Motherwell Trial

DOWNIEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Attorneys Friday prepared for a major fight on the type of evidence to be allowed in the trial of Larry Lord Motherwell on a murder charge.

At issue when the case resumes next Tuesday after a five-day recess is whether the prosecution may present a statement made by 72-year-old wealthy Mrs. Pearl Putney, Washington, D.C. widow, to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Castro M. Dabrohus. The defense contends the statement is hearsay.

Motherwell is accused of killing Mrs. Putney while on a transcontinental trip with her in 1958. She disappeared Aug. 15 of that year. Bones believed to be hers were found a year and a day later on a remote logging road in this county.

The case was recessed Wednesday when the prosecution started questioning Mrs. Dabrohus. Superior Judge Warren Steel says he will rule after the trial resumes.

Newsman Dies In Auto Mishap

BALTIMORE (AP) — John S. Armstrong Jr., 71-year-old financial editor of the Baltimore Sun, was killed in a traffic accident Friday.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at the Church of the Good Shepherd in suburban Ruxton. Burial will be in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

Armstrong was waiting to take a bus to work in front of his home in Ruxton, police said, when he was hit by a car. He died just after he was admitted to a hospital.

He was financial editor for all of his 37 years on the Sun. It was Armstrong's only newspaper job. He was with the U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co. in Baltimore for four years before joining the Sun in 1923 and before that had spent 10 years with the U.S. consular service.

Armstrong was born in Tempe, Ariz., and later moved to Wilmington, N.C., before coming to Baltimore in 1908.

He is survived by his widow, Winifred Fitz-Gerald, whom he married in Ireland during his foreign service in Europe; a son, John S. Armstrong III of Scottsdale, Ariz., and a daughter, Mrs. William C. Grant Jr. of Williams-town, Mass.

Senate Signals Squeeze On Rights Foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders signaled Friday for a tightening squeeze next week on Southern senators battling against civil rights measures.

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) told newsmen he plans to start Saturday sessions and to keep the Senate in session somewhat longer each day. It has been averaging about eight hours daily since the debate started Monday.

He also served notice the Senate will have no Washington's Birthday holiday next Monday, that the debate will go on after the traditional reading of Washington's Farewell Address by Sen. Frank E. Moss (D-Utah).

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Republican leader, said steps of this type are required if the Senate is going to overcome Southern resistance and pass a civil rights bill.

The issue was joined when Johnson brought a minor House-passed Stella, Mo., school-leaving bill before the Senate and then announced that civil rights measures could be offered to it as amendments.

Johnson had committed himself last August to bringing civil rights up in the Senate by Feb. 15 even if no bill had been passed by the House or recommended by a Senate committee.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) bitterly assailed this action Friday, saying the Senate is "proceeding in irresponsible disorder meriting national contempt."

"The purpose is to use confusion for enactment of punitive, vindictive, and unconstitutional legislation," he told the Senate. Byrd was the first of the day's speakers for the Dixie forces, after the Senate had spent more than 3½ hours arguing over national defense.

Governor Orders

was prolonged for another two months only to feel the deadly gas.

A legal authority in the state attorney general's office, Arlo Smith, a deputy, said it would be possible for a jurist to set the new execution date for 61 days from now.

Brown told his news conference that three men due to die in the San Quentin chamber in March will get reprieves and no one will be executed until the Legislature has acted on a bill to abolish capital punishment.

Chessman had just wound up three hours of conversation with Warden Dickson in the special death cell when the telephone call came. He went back and told the prisoner: "Caryl, the governor has granted you a reprieve."

"Warden, you wouldn't kid me, would you?" the denim-clad convict asked incredulously.

"No, I wouldn't kid you about anything like that," Dickson assured.

Chessman stood tense and trembling. "Just a second, let me get myself together," he asked, "because actually I had resigned myself that this is it."

He managed a request that Dickson thank the governor for him—then was led back up to cell 23 on the sixth floor. That is one of two rooms where Chessman has written three published books, a fourth now impounded, and scores of legal briefs in a fight that has gone 13 times to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I think this is the beginning of the end of capital punishment in California," said one of Chessman's attorneys, George T. Davis, on hearing of the governor's action.

Davis, in a previously scheduled television debate Thursday night with a state assemblyman on capital punishment, wound up by appealing personally to the governor.

Earlier, both the U.S. Supreme Court and the California Supreme Court had closed legal doors. The state court, by twice voting 4-3 against clemency, made it impossible for Brown to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. Under California law, the State Supreme Court must concur with the governor in cases where the condemned person has a previous felony record.

W.Va. Couple, Foster Child Are Missing

PARSONS, W. Va. (UPI) — A Parsons couple which learned last week end that they were to lose their three-year-old foster daughter has been absent from their home here for four days.

A West Virginia Department of Public Assistance case worker reported Friday that Forrest and Edith Isner and the child have not been seen for that period.

State DPA Director Thomas Egbert said in Charleston that case worker Martha Kochenderfer told him she did not know where the couple and child had gone.

The Isners were told last Saturday by Gov. Cecil H. Underwood they must give up the blond-haired youngster they had raised since she was a week old.

And it was at this point that Miss Kochenderfer started visits to the Isners home to become acquainted with little Rosemary.

These visits were to continue until she became accustomed to the child and the child to her and then Rosemary was to be placed in another home with adoptive parents.

Egbert said Friday night that Miss Kochenderfer said it was one of these visits last Tuesday that she found the Isners gone. She said she saw them on Monday.

"We'll just have to wait and see what develops," Egbert said, "one could go away from home if they wished and thus far the Isners have done nothing illegal."

The couple was known to be very upset over the decision by Underwood which came after a long legal battle over the child's custody.

However, Dorothy Allen, child welfare division chief, said the couple was cooperating with the case worker and showed no indication of refusing to give up the child.

Miss Allen said "we are concerned" but don't know whether the Isners are merely visiting friends or relatives or have left town.

In his statement last week, Underwood accused the couple of promoting "an extravagant publicity campaign" to gain public support for their efforts to gain permanent custody of Rosemary.

The governor said "the facts clearly indicate" that the Isners "have not fulfilled their agreements or obligations."

He said that before the child was six-months old, the DPA attempted to place it for adoption and the couple "refused to cooperate."

Prince Charles Reads Of Event

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles first learned there was to be an addition to the royal family from the newspapers.

That was last August. At that time he was told by his father, Prince Philip, that he was being moved out of the nursery suite at Buckingham Palace which he had shared with his sister, Princess Anne.

"The rooms are needed for another purpose now," Prince Philip told the 11-year-old Prince of Wales, without particularizing.

But Prince Charles is an avid newspaper reader—and soon discovered the reason.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Hand Craft

Hands should "speak" only grace when they do move. Some women are born with the ability there should be a feeling of to use their hands well. With every movement is awkward. The first rule to remember is: Use your hands whenever necessary — otherwise keep them quiet. To avoid unnecessary little mannerisms such as fussing with your hair or touching your face or picking at a chair, concentrate on keeping your hands in your lap (with the palms turned up) or at your sides. The charming woman controls her every gesture.

Hands must be relaxed and calm when they do move because tense hands have no beauty. If you are particularly upset or nervous before some event, squeeze your hands together lightly for a moment or two, thus releasing the tension.

A charming woman never places her fingers in any set positions. When drinking from a teacup, she never extends her last finger. She holds it in a natural easy manner and curves the fingers inward.

A proper handshake is very important. It can create a feeling of liking or irritation. A lovely, charming woman, beautifully dressed, can spoil the entire effect with a ridiculous handshake — say, held, aloft in grotesque affectation. If she is not sincere about it and allows her hand to go limp like a wet rag, that shows lack of character and annoys the one she is greeting. Although, a handshake is brief, there should be a feeling of warmth and strength in it. A younger woman usually shakes the hand of the older. Give a firm, natural clasp and then let go. Never squeeze a friend's hand in a viselike grasp, as it may hurt, and there certainly is no pleasure in that. A lady never takes off her gloves to shake hands — unless she is wearing a soiled gardening pair.

Does the goal you're seeking seem as remote—as unattainable—as this snow-frosted mountain top? Does it seem, sometimes, as if you'll never get there? Are you on the verge of giving up?

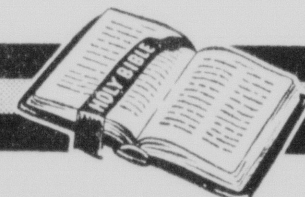

Don't! Though your objective may seem light-years beyond your reach, if it's the right thing for you, God will help you to attain it, if you'll let Him. The teachings of His Church will help you find the patience and endurance you need to accept setbacks . . . and still keep trying.

Don't try to climb to the top all by yourself. It's a lonely ascent. Let the Church help you, as it helped those who were here before you . . . and as it will help those who come after you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Does the goal you're seeking seem as remote—as unattainable—as this snow-frosted mountain top? Does it seem, sometimes, as if you'll never get there? Are you on the verge of giving up?

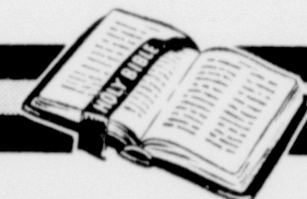

Don't! Though your objective may seem light-years beyond your reach, if it's the right thing for you, God will help you to attain it, if you'll let Him. The teachings of His Church will help you find the patience and endurance you need to accept setbacks . . . and still keep trying.

Don't try to climb to the top all by yourself. It's a lonely ascent. Let the Church help you, as it helped those who were here before you . . . and as it will help those who come after you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Hampshire Co. Hospital Report Reflects Progress

ROMNEY — When Hampshire Memorial Hospital opened its doors February 2, 1959, it did so without a regular surgeon, thereby being temporarily at a disadvantage in the scope of its services for three and one half months. However, the institution has compiled an enviable record.

The record of the hospital is a reflection of the spirit behind three years of work and planning, which preceded the voting on a special levy of $246,000 plus a three-year special levy to raise an added $114,000. Hill-Burton funds were also allocated for aiding in the construction of the institution. Total cost of the facility is about $850,000.

Records show that 135 operations have been performed at the hospital and 84 babies born.

In its first year, 5,750 patient days were logged with the average stay being six days. Excluding X-ray and laboratory patients, there were 973 in-patients.

It is interesting to note that in the dietitian, Mrs. Carl Roach, and her staff have prepared 22,112 meals. This is a massive job when one realizes that there are no standard menus in a hospital. Special foods are required in accordance with the personal needs of each patient, according to individual illness.

A glance at the financial side of the operation shows that total services to in-patients, out-patients and emergency patients brought a total of $65,622.05 into the hospital treasury. The net patient income for the first year stands at $131,542.39. Add to that funds contributed through memorial funds and grants and the net operating income total is $162,064.50.

The hospital has given the economy of the area a boost of $115,342.02 in the form of its annual payroll. There are now 65 employees at Hampshire Memorial.

John C. Ailes is hospital administrator.

W.Va. Battles Second Storm Within Week

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia residents Friday battled feverishly to overcome effects of the second paralyzing snowstorm in less than a week.

But they were told not to expect much help from the weatherman before Sunday. A cold wave which followed on the heels of the storm left highways in treacherous condition Friday and they were not expected to be much improved Saturday.

Temperatures were scheduled to drop into the low teens Friday night and rise to the mid-20s Saturday. Warmer readings were forecast for Sunday.

Highway crews, without much rest, spent Friday opening highways blocked by drifts up to 15 feet high on some roads. Utility repairmen, working round the clock, attempted to restore electric and telephone service which collapsed in many sections under the "wet snow" of Thursday night.

The State Road Commission advised use of chains in all parts of the state. State Police recommended travel by motorists only in cases of emergency.

At least two West Virginia highways in the eastern mountain sections of the state remained closed, as did most all the rural secondary roads in the state. W. Va. 15 east of Webster Springs toward Valley Head, Randolph County was blocked as was W. Va. 32 between Harmon and Davis in Tucker County.

Schools in 23 West Virginia counties closed Friday giving students their second long week end vacation. In most instances, they were the same counties which cancelled classes last Monday.

Airlines began flights into Charleston and Huntington at noon Friday and spokesman said elsewhere in the state they depended upon the pilot's discretion for landing. Greyhound started its bus runs from Charleston north to Pittsburgh and south to Winston-Salem in the early afternoon. Runs eastward to Charlottesville, Va. were scheduled to resume Friday night.

The south-bound bus detoured from its normal course after arrival at Princeton. Instead of going on to Bluefield and south over U. S. 52 to Wytheville, it traveled from Princeton to Pearisburg, Va., then to Dublin and into Wytheville.

Elkins appeared to be among the cities hardest hit by the storm. Communication lines were down all day Friday. Charleston apparently was the hardest hit by power failures, with about 2,000 subscribers affected. Some were without power during the night. There also were power disruptions at Bluefield, Athens, Huntington, Pt. Pleasant, and Fairmont.

Students At Frostburg College Enjoy Snow Storm

Symphony Orchestra To Give Matinee

Telephone Co. said 1,100 trunk lines were out of order because of the storm. This affected the telephones of 5,700 subscribers.

At least eight towns were still without service by nightfall, including Buckhannon, Franklin, Pendleton County, and Whitesville, Boone County. C&P said it was operating local service under emergency power at five cities, including Elkins. Several independent telephone companies also had service disrupted.

The storm left up to three feet of snow on the ground at Logan and more than 20 inches at Elkins, Charleston, which had one of its worst traffic snarls in years as a result of the storm, had eight inches of new snow and Bluefield counted 11 inches.

Many persons were stranded along southern highways Thursday night. The West Virginia Turnpike Commission said many persons left their vehicles on Flat Top Mountain and about 40 persons were stranded on U. S. 52 south of Bluefield. In most instances, State Police helped them get to nearby homes and business establishments for the night.

Masontown Seeks Water Rate Boost

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Public Service Commission Friday set March 10 as the date for hearing an application from the community of Masontown, Preston County.

The town asked to raise monthly water service charges by $2 by boosting the monthly minimum to $5. Customers outside the town would continue to pay 50 per cent more than Masontown residents.

W.Va. Police Radio Helps Elkins Paper Get News Report

ELKINS, W. Va. (AP)—The Elkins Inter-Mountain, an afternoon newspaper with a circulation of 5,142, turned to police radio Friday in order to publish. With telephone and news service wires knocked out by a snowstorm, things looked grim for a while. Then the Inter-Mountain contacted another afternoon paper, the Fairmont West Virginian, via police radio and asked for help.

The West Virginian prepared a capsule summary of the day's news, including birth of a son to Queen Elizabeth, and had it radioed back to Elkins. Fairmont is about 40 miles north of Elkins.

In his talk, Neely commented the interest and enthusiasm of those gathered for the meeting and said "it is fitting that the 100th anniversary of President Lincoln's term as President was being brought to a close by another great President, Dwight D. Hampshire Co. Hospital Report Reflects Progress

ROMNEY — When Hampshire Memorial Hospital opened its doors February 2, 1959, it did so without a regular surgeon, thereby being temporarily at a disadvantage in the scope of its services for three and one half months. However, the institution has compiled an enviable record.

The record of the hospital is a reflection of the spirit behind three years of work and planning, which preceded the voting on a special levy of $248,000 plus a three-year special levy to raise an added $114,000. Hill-Burton funds were also allocated for aiding in the construction of the institution. Total cost of the facility is about $850,000.

Records show that 135 operations have been performed at the hospital and 84 babies born.

In its first year, 5,730 patient days were logged with the average stay being six days. Excluding X-ray and laboratory patients, there were 973 in-patients.

It is interesting to note that the dietitian, Mrs. Carl Roach, and her staff have prepared 22,112 meals. This is a massive job when one realizes that there are no standard menus in a hospital. Special foods are required in accordance with the personal needs of each patient, according to individual illness.

A glance at the financial side of the operation shows that total services to in-patients, out-patients and emergency patients brought a total of $65,622.65 into the hospital treasury. The net patient income for the first year stands at $131,542.39. Add to that funds contributed through memorial funds and grants and the net operating income total is $162,064.50.

The hospital has given the economy of the area a boost of $115,342.92 in the form of its annual payroll. There are now 65 employees at Hampshire Memorial.

John C. Ailes is hospital administrator.

W.Va. Battles Second Storm Within Week

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia residents Friday battled feverishly to overcome effects of the second paralyzing snowstorm in less than a week.

But they were told not to expect much help from the weatherman before Sunday. A cold wave which followed on the heels of the storm left highways in the dietitian, Mrs. Carl Roach, treacherous condition Friday and they were not expected to be 112 meals. This is a massive job when one realizes that there are no standard menus in a hospital.

Temperatures were scheduled to drop into the low teens Friday night and rise to the mid-20s Saturday. Warmer readings were forecast for Sunday.

Highway crews, without much rest, spent Friday opening highways blocked by drifts up to 15 feet high on some roads. Utility repairmen, working round the clock, attempted to restore electric and telephone service which collapsed in many sections under the "wet snow" of Thursday night.

The State Road Commission advised use of chains in all parts of the state. State Police recommended travel by motorists only in cases of emergency.

At least two West Virginia highways in the eastern mountain sections of the state remained closed, as did most of the rural secondary roads in the state. W. Va. 15 east of Webster Springs toward Valley Head, Randolph County was blocked as was W. Va. 32 between Harmon and Davis in Tucker County.

Schools in 23 West Virginia counties closed Friday giving students their second long week end vacation. In most instances, they were the same counties which cancelled classes last Monday.

Airlines began flights into Charleston and Huntington at noon Friday and spokesmen said elsewhere in the state they depended upon the pilot's discretion for landing. Greyhound started its bus runs from Charleston north to Pittsburgh and south to Winston-Salem in the early afternoon. Buses eastward to Charlottesville, Va., were scheduled to resume Friday night.

The south-bound bus detoured from its normal course after arrival at Princeton. Instead of going on to Bluefield and south over U. S. 52 to Wytheville, it traveled from Princeton to Pearisburg, Va., then to Dublin and into Wytheville.

Elkins appeared to be among the cities hardest hit by the storm. Communication lines were down all day Friday. Charleston apparently was the hardest hit by power failures, with about 2,000 subscribers affected. Some were without power during the night. There also were power disruptions at Bluefield, Athens, Huntington, Pt. Pleasant, and Fairmont.

The Chesapeake and Potomac finished basement—OV 9-6300. Adv. N-T-Feb. 18-19-20.

Symphony Orchestra To Give Matinee

FROSTBURG — The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra conducted by Peter Herman Adler will present a matinee concert Sunday at 4 p. m. on the stage in Compton Hall auditorium at Frostburg State Teachers College. There are no reserved seats.

The program will include "Caraval Overture," "Serenade for Strings" and "Symphony 5 in E Minor." Of interest to the audience will be the appearance of Robert Pierce, who will be heard in the familiar French horn solo of the second movement of Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony. He is a son of the late James Pierce, pianist and an instructor in the Music Department of Frostburg State Teachers College.

Charles I. Sager is chairman of the assembly committee in charge of scheduling events in the artists series. Other members are Miss Dorothy Stone White, Dr. Howard Lewis Briggs, Miss Lene Kirkeby, Miss Rosann Langhans, Miss Sandra Cadotte, Miss Carol Lockstein, Miss Carol Lannon, James Daly, Mrs. Fulton Katz, Edward Lester and R. Thomas Hutcheson.

The concert will mark the third appearance of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra on the campus. In his talk, Neely commented the interest and enthusiasm of those gathered for the meeting and said "it is fitting that the 100th anniversary of President Lincoln's term as President was being brought to a close by another great President, Dwight D. Eisenhower." Referring to the Saturday Evening Post story, "all Republicans and West Virginia citizens should continue the fight to elevate West Virginia among the states of the nation and that all citizens of the state should join to make the Saturday

W.Va. Police Radio Helps Elkins Paper Get News Report

ELKINS, W. Va. (AP) — The Elkins Inter-Mountain, an afternoon newspaper with a circulation of 5,142, turned to police radio Friday in order to publish.

With telephone and news service wires knocked out by a snowstorm, things looked grim for a while. Then the Inter-Mountain contacted another afternoon paper, the Fairmont West Virginian, via police radio and asked for help.

The West Virginian prepared a capsule summary of the day's news, including birth of a son to Queen Elizabeth, and had it radioed back to Elkins. Fairmont is about 40 miles north of Elkins.

KEYSER — Two hundred sixty Evening Post eat their words." Republicans attended the Lincoln Chapman Revercomb commemorative dinner Thursday evening at the Shrine Club near Saturday Evening Post and said Burlington H. Gus Munzing, "that he could not understand Judge of the 22nd Judicial Cir. why certain people who represent our state would be so concerned about the story when they had created the very picture by painting West Virginia as a depressed and needy state, the nomination for Governor of West Virginia, Charles Whitson, Jr."

Committee members present included: James Dixon Mineral, Harold Carvey, Keyser, Richard Roy L. Saville, Hampshire; and Whetzel, Carl Wimer, state fire marshal; Donald Adams, war veteran; Roy L. Other telegrams were also read from Gov. Cecil H. Underwood, Daniel Louchery, state chairman, and Stanley R. Cox, candidate for Congress, 2nd District.

In his talk, Neely commented the interest and enthusiasm of those gathered for the meeting and said "it is fitting that the 100th anniversary of President Lincoln's term as President was being brought to a close by another great President, Dwight D. Visit Westvaco Mill

Twenty-four students from the graphic design department of Yale University's graduate school of art and architecture arrived here yesterday for a two-day visit at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. They're taking an intensive look at the paper making process. Members of the group pictured here add an international flavor to the visit. They are (left to right) Nahum Zilberberg from Tel Aviv,

Israel; Peter Seitz, Ulm, Germany; John Lees, Weston-Super-Mare, Somerset, England; Mrs. Donald Louchheim, New Haven, Conn.; Ulrich Ruchti, Bern, Switzerland; Professor Alvin Eisenman, their instructor, and Bradbury Thompson, Riverside, Conn., noted designer and art director who is a visiting critic at Yale. The group plans to leave this afternoon for the return trip to New Haven.

Apportionment Plan May Require Tawes' Support

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Reapportionment of the House of Delegates had its first floor workout Friday and evidently it will need some direct help from Gov. Tawes to assure passage.

A dry run for the proposal to increase the number of delegates from 123 to 141 indicated there are few if any votes to spare in favor of it in the House.

The governor is on record with his endorsement of the change in representation. But he will have to apply personal and political pressure to provide any feeling of confidence about success.

The 26 Eastern Shore delegates, the core of opposition, met in caucus Friday afternoon after the bill went through second reading to be ready for passage next week.

Takes 74 Votes

In a head count, the shoremen figured that there were no more than 76 delegates now of a mind to vote for reapportionment. It will take 74 to pass, so it will be touch and go since the shoremen's estimate including 15 not voting and some felt they could be persuaded to switch.

Speaker Wilkinson (D - Balto County) said he will not put the bill on the passage calendar until Tuesday. Opponents, after locking over the seats occupied in the House at the Monday night session, might move to force it to a vote then if they think they can win.

They tried that tactic Friday. But they failed by a 54-54 vote to have the rules suspended so the bill could be speeded up for its final vote.

The delegates also voted down 54 - 51 an amendment by Del. Mitchell (D-Charles) to revise the population formula on which the number of delegates would be based.

Hits Appeasement

Mitchell proposed that a county with two delegates gain another when its population reaches 40,000. The bill set the figure at 50,000.

Del. Hess (D-Harford) objected the Mitchell amendment was just "another compromise to seek the necessary 74 votes for passage." He accused proponents of reapportionment of "keeping on appeasing."

He referred to an amendment accepted previously by the Judiciary Committee designed to pick up Baltimore City votes. The amendment accepted by the House Thursday would automatically grant another delegate to the 3rd and 5th districts of the city.

Road Bill Advances

After the reapportionment sparring, the House enacted the first three bills of the 30-day session scheduled to end March 3. One of the bills sent to the governor will allow the State to pay 4 percent interests instead of 3 on future school construction bonds. The two others corrected errors in present laws.

The House also forwarded to the Senate two of three bills aimed at meeting objections of the Court of Appeals to special assessment of farm land for taxation.

The Senate postponed until next week action on two of its major bills—a pay raise for school teachers and expansion of the Court of Appeals. It nudged to within a step of passage a third major measure, to permit the State Roads Commission to speed up construction of 400 miles of main highways over the next four years. Sen. Harry Phoebus (R-Somerset) requested a delay until Monday night for what will probably be a showdown vote on the teacher pay issue. He said teachers and PTA officials should have the opportunity to be present.

Debate Set Monday

The debate will come Monday night on an amendment sponsored by Sen. Parran (D-Charles) for a compromise between the governor's $4,300,000 program and the 17-million-dollar bill sought by teachers.

Senate leaders feel they have the strength to kill it and send the pay bill to Gov. Tawes next week.

The Senate set the roads bill up for final passage after tacking on an amendment which will require that roads officials consult local legislators, as well as city and county officials, on construction plans.

It also will require the SRC to report to the Legislature next year how it plans to spend the 40 million dollars which is going into a kitty for secondary road improvements.

No More Action Planned By Board In Health Dispute

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners will not make any further moves concerning its request for the transfer of Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said yesterday the board has made its decision and will stand on that. "All public hearings deemed necessary have been held," Rowan said the board decided.

Dr. Perry F. Prather, director of the State Department of Health, in a reply to the county board's request for the transfer has asked for documentation of the commissioner's charges before taking into consideration the request.

travel to the wreck scene were Dr. Donald B. Grove, local surgeon, and Dr. Richard J. Williams, local physician, who were asked to be prepared to aid the injured.

Also on the train were B. F. Hotchkiss, road foreman; Capt. B. James and Lieutenant Steve Wandless of the railroad's police department; Lee R. Mullendore and A. B. Van Horn of the railroad staff.

However, word was received here that it would not be necessary to dispatch the special two-coach train. A supply of hot coffee and sandwiches, made up at the Queen City Station restaurant, had been placed on the special train.

Coach Derails

The lead coach of the crack Speedliner was reported to have derailed when the front section crashed into the caboose of the work train.

The cause of the accident was not determined last night by railroad officials who are continuing an investigation.

Ordinarily the train travels at a rate of about 55 miles through the vicinity of Sand Patch. However, due to weather and communication conditions the engineer was reported to have been operating the two-unit train under manual block rules and was expected to be able to stop sooner than usual.

After the injured were removed from the train the remaining 127 passengers, a railroad official said, got in the unit which remained on the tracks and made the trip to Cumberland arriving here about 6:17 p.m.

The unit was attached to the two coaches of the special train and the extra three-car passenger train continued on to Baltimore.

Doubly Smart

Mr. Swauger said that he saw no immediate danger so long as the power is retained. Milk and bread are the principal need at the camp.

Difficulty started earlier Thursday night for Mr. Swauger and Jack Blair, his assistant. They had been to Baltimore Thursday for a meeting with State Welfare Department officials responsible for the operation of the camp.

On their return, the heavy snowfall kept them from getting within two miles of the camp.

The camp leaders had to trudge the final two miles through snow which sometimes was almost waist deep. This long hike under adverse conditions had its effect upon both men yesterday. Mr. Swauger complained of pains in his leg. Mr. Blair wrenched his back. Snow in the vicinity of the Lonaconing camp was about 12 inches deep.

Snow at the New Germany camp, where 17 boys and the leaders were stranded, was measured at 30 inches. Philip Axman, camp director, said the boys got the roads on the camp property cleared of snow yesterday but county road crews were unable to plow the county road leading into the camp 15 miles south of Grantsville.

Mr. Axman said morale was good at the camp, there was at least a week's supply of food on hand and Mrs. William Fauth, the cook, was commended as one able to prepare excellent food under adverse conditions. The temperature outside the camp was 12 degrees about 8 o'clock last night.

Milk and bread also are the most immediate needs at the New Germany camp.

The state's first boys' forestry camp, located on Green Ridge Mountain some 20 miles east of Cumberland in Allegany County, could not be reached by phone last night. However, another Green Ridge Mountain resident said there was comparatively little snow in the vicinity of the camp, and county road crews had plowed the roads off U. S. Route 40 in that vicinity. This camp is only about one-quarter of a mile south of the main highway.

CC Planning Activity For Auto Races

A weeklong community-wide carnival or exposition geared to the annual sports car races to be held here May 14-15 is to be undertaken by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Earl D. Chaney, president, said funds for what is to be the first annual celebration were approved by the Board of Directors Thursday night.

Chaney said the exposition is intended to "regenerate civic pride in the community" and bring national publicity to Cumberland as a transportation and industrial center.

The Sports Car Races, sponsored here by the Cumberland Lions Club Foundation, was selected as the basis for the celebration because of its national scope. In planning for the event, Chaney said officials of the Chamber envision that eventually the program could be on the same scale as that of the annual Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va., and include activities by every club and organization in the area.

"To be effective, however, the effort must be a community affair," Chaney emphasized.

Plans for the celebration were outlined by Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the Chamber Civic Affairs Committee who said that enthusiastic support of the project has come from Mayor J. Edwin Keech and City Attorney William R. Carscaden who has been one of the leading figures in the sports car races planning committee since they first came here several years ago.

Kenney said the Chamber invites the public to submit any ideas it might have on activities which might be included and suggested that they write to the Chamber which has offices in the Liberty Trust Company building.

In providing an atmosphere of hospitality and a community backdrop for the sports car races, the exposition activities suggested could include a parade in which civic and industrial floats, bands, and cars (sports, standard and antique) would be entered. The downtown section would be decorated, industrial and transportation displays set up, concerts held, a pageant presented and armed forces units invited to show the latest in military weapons both for ground troops and in aviation. Another feature would be a fireworks display.

Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber, emphasized that the public and groups interested in the success of the May event must respond quickly since only three months remain before the car races. Several committees are to be appointed and the full cooperation of their chairmen and members will be necessary, he added.

Schools Add Extra Day Because Of Snow

Bad news is in store for pupils in Allegany County public schools who awoke happily yesterday to find that for the second time this week schools were closed.

There's a little catch involved with the "gift" of free days.

Ralph R. Webster, school superintendent said yesterday that in order for the mandatory 180 school days be held, county schools will take a day from their Easter vacation schedule.

It was scheduled for schools to close for the vacation at 3:30 p. m., Wednesday, April 13, and to resume classes Wednesday, April 20.

Now, since the two free days have been given which brought the scheduled school days down from 181 to 179, classes will resume Tuesday, April 19, in order to bring the total back to 180.

Court Probates Rumsel Will

The will of Levi Clyde Rumsel, who was an 87-year-old resident of 224 National Highway, LaVale, at the time of his death January 24, was probated yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Francis Theodore Bell, 224 National Highway, the deceased's son-in-law, qualified as executor under a $1,000 bond. The will, which was dated October 31, 1949, while Mr. Rumsel lived in Topeka, Kan., provided that his estate should go to his wife should she survive him. However, she died last May 3. In view of the wife's death, the entire estate was left to his daughter, Mrs. Miriam Isabelle Rumsel Bell.

Petra, a rose-red rock hidden city among the cliffs of southern Jordan, has a hotel accommodating 20 guests. Overflow guests are housed in tents and caves.

Local Man Arraigned In Ohio

Jesse James Valentine, 32-year-old local resident who is wanted by Allegany County authorities in connection with a number of safecrackings, was arraigned yesterday in Akron Municipal Court on a fugitive charge.

Valentine was picked up Wednesday by the Ohio Highway Patrol on information furnished by Sgt. William F. Baker and Tfc. Milton Hart, criminal investigators for the Maryland State Police.

Extradition proceedings against Valentine are pending disposition of the fugitive charge. Sgt. Baker said.

Valentine was implicated in a number of county safe jobs by three residents of the Bowman's Addition area who were captured last week in a concerted drive by State Police units of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The trio, James E. Crowe, 24; Olin C. Miller, 33, and 16-year-old James A. Hutzell, each were ordered held under $5,000 bond for action of the next grand jury. Hutzell is free under bond, while the other two are being held in the county lockup. Juvenile Court waived jurisdiction in the case against Hutzell.

Visit Westvaco Mill

Twenty-four students from the graphic design department of Yale University's graduate school of art and architecture arrived here yesterday for a two-day visit at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. They're taking an intensive look at the paper making process. Members of the group pictured here add an international flavor to the visit. They are (left to right) Nahum Zilberberg from Tel Aviv,

Israel; Peter Seitz, Ulm, Germany; John Lees, Weston-Super-Mare, Somerset, England; Mrs. Donald Louchheim, New Haven, Conn.; Ulrich Ruchti, Bern, Switzerland. Professor Alvin Eisenman, their instructor, and Bradbury Thompson, Riverside, Conn., noted designer and art director who is a visiting critic at Yale. The group plans to leave this afternoon for the return trip to New Haven.

Apportionment Plan May Require Tawes' Support

ANNAPOIS (AP) — Reapportionment of the House of Delegates had its first floor workout Friday and evidently it will need some direct help from Gov. Tawes to assure passage.

A dry run for the proposal to increase the number of delegates from 123 to 141 indicated there are few if any votes to spare in favor of it in the House.

The governor is on record with his endorsement of the change in representation. But he will have to apply personal and political pressure to provide any feeling of confidence about success.

The 26 Eastern Shore delegates, the core of opposition, met in caucus Friday afternoon after the bill went through second reading to be ready for passage next week.

Takes 74 Votes

In a head count, the shoremen figured that there were no more than 76 delegates now of a mind to vote for reapportionment. It will take 74 to pass, so it will be touch and go since the shoremen's estimate including 15 not voting and some felt they could be persuaded to switch.

Speaker Wilkinson (D - Balto County) said he will not put the bill on the passage calendar until Tuesday. Opponents, after locking over the seats occupied in the House at the Monday night session, might move to force it to a vote then if they think they can win.

They tried that tactic Friday. But they failed by a 54-54 vote to have the rules suspended so the bill could be speeded up for its final vote.

The delegates also voted down 54 - 51 an amendment by Del. Mitchell (D-Charles) to revise the population formula on which the number of delegates would be based.

Hits Appeasement

Mitchell proposed that a county with two delegates gain another when its population reaches 40,000. The bill set the figure at 50,000. Del. Hess (D-Harford) objected the Mitchell amendment was just "another compromise to seek the necessary 74 votes for passage." He accused proponents of reapportionment of "keeping on appeasing."

He referred to an amendment accepted previously by the Judiciary Committee designed to pick up Baltimore City votes. The amendment accepted by the House Thursday would automatically grant another delegate to the 3rd and 5th districts of the city.

Road Bill Advances

After the reapportionment sparring, the House enacted the first three bills of the 30-day session scheduled to end March 3. One of the bills sent to the governor will allow the State to pay 4 per cent interests instead of 3 on future school construction bonds. The two others corrected errors in present laws.

The House also forwarded to the Senate two of three bills aimed at meeting objections of the Court of Appeals to special assessment of farm land for taxation.

The Senate postponed until next week action on two of its major bills—a pay raise for school teachers and expansion of the Court of Appeals. It nudged to within a step of passage a third major measure, to permit the State Roads Commission to speed up construction of 400 miles of main highways over the next four years.

Sen. Harry Phoebus (R-Somerset) requested a delay until Monday night for what will probably be a showdown vote on the teacher pay issue. He said teachers and P-TA officials should have the opportunity to be present.

Debate Set Monday

The debate will come Monday night on an amendment sponsored by Sen. Parran (D-Charles) for a compromise between the governor's $4,300,000 program and the 17-million-dollar bill sought by teachers.

Senate leaders feel they have the strength to kill it and send the pay bill to Gov. Tawes next week.

The Senate set the roads bill up for final passage after tacking on an amendment which will require that roads officials consult local legislators, as well as city and county officials, on construction plans.

It also will require the SRC to report to the Legislature next year how it plans to spend the 40 million dollars which is going into a kitty for secondary road improvements.

No More Action Planned By Board In Health Dispute

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners will not make any further moves concerning its request for the transfer of Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said yesterday the board has made its decision and will stand on that. "All public hearings deemed necessary have been held," Rowan said the board decided.

Dr. Perry F. Prather, director of the State Department of Health, in a reply to the county board's request for the transfer has asked for documentation of the commissioner's charges before taking into consideration the request.

travel to the wreck scene were Dr. Donald B. Grove, local surgeon, and Dr. Richard J. Williams, local physician, who were asked to be prepared to aid the injured.

Also on the train were B. F. Hotchkiss, road foreman; Capt. B. James and Lieutenant Steve Wandless of the railroad's police department; Lee R. Mullendore and A. B. Van Horn of the railroad staff.

However, word was received here that it would not be necessary to dispatch the special two-coach train. A supply of hot coffee and sandwiches, made up at the Queen City Station restaurant, had been placed on the special train.

Coach Derails

The lead coach of the crack Speedliner was reported to have derailed when the front section crashed into the caboose of the work train.

The cause of the accident was not determined last night by railroad officials who are continuing an investigation.

Ordinarily the train travels at a rate of about 55 miles through the vicinity of Sand Patch. However, due to weather and communication conditions the engineer was reported to have been operating the two-unit train under manual block rules and was expected to be able to stop sooner than usual.

After the injured were removed from the train the remaining 127 passengers, a railroad official said, got in the unit which remained on the tracks and made the trip to Cumberland arriving here about 6:17 p.m.

The unit was attached to the two coaches of the special train and the extra three-car passenger train continued on to Baltimore.

Doubly Smart

Difficultly started earlier Thursday night for Mr. Swauger and Jack Blair, his assistant. They had been to Baltimore Thursday for a meeting with State Welfare Department officials responsible for the operation of the camp. On their return, the heavy snowfall kept them from getting within two miles of the camp.

The camp leaders had to trudge the final two miles through snow which sometimes was almost waist deep. This long hike under adverse conditions had its effect upon both men yesterday. Mr. Swauger complained of pains in his leg. Mr. Blair wrenched his back. Snow in the vicinity of the Lonaconing camp was about 12 inches deep.

Snow at the New Germany camp, where 17 boys and the leaders were stranded, was measured at 30 inches. Philip Axman, camp director, said the boys got the roads on the camp property cleared of snow yesterday but county road crews were unable to plow the county road leading into the camp 15 miles south of Grantsville.

Mr. Axman said morale was good at the camp, there was at least a week's supply of food on hand and Mrs. William Fauth, the cook, was commended as one able to prepare excellent food under adverse conditions. The temperature outside the camp was 12 degrees about 8 o'clock last night.

Milk and bread also are the most immediate needs at the New Germany camp.

The state's first boys' forestry camp, located on Green Ridge Mountain some 20 miles east of Cumberland in Allegany County, could not be reached by phone last night. However, another Green Ridge Mountain resident said there was comparatively little snow in the vicinity of the camp, and county road crews had plowed the roads off U. S. Route 40 in that vicinity. This camp is only about one-quarter of a mile south of the main highway.

CC Planning Activity For Auto Races

A weeklong community-wide carnival or exposition geared to the annual sports car races to be held here May 14-15 is to be undertaken by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Earl D. Chaney, president, said funds for what is to be the first annual celebration were approved by the Board of Directors Thursday night.

Chaney said the exposition is intended to "regenerate civic pride in the community" and bring national publicity to Cumberland as a transportation and industrial center.

The Sports Car Races, sponsored here by the Cumberland Lions Club Foundation, was selected as the basis for the celebration because of its national scope. In planning for the event, Chaney said officials of the Chamber envision that eventually the program could be on the same scale as that of the annual Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va., and include activities by every club and organization in the area.

"To be effective, however, the effort must be a community affair," Chaney emphasized.

Plans for the celebration were outlined by Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the Chamber Civic Affairs Committee who said that enthusiastic support of the project has come from Mayor J. Edwin Keech and City Attorney William R. Carscaden who has been one of the leading figures in the sports car races planning committee since they first came here several years ago.

Kenney said the Chamber invites the public to submit any ideas it might have on activities which might be included and suggested that they write to the Chamber which has offices in the Liberty Trust Company building.

In providing an atmosphere of hospitality and a community backdrop for the sports car races, the exposition activities suggested could include a parade in which civic and industrial floats, bands, and cars (sports, standard and antique) would be entered. The downtown section would be decorated, industrial and transportation displays set up, concerts held, a pageant presented and armed forces units invited to show the latest in military weapons both for ground troops and in aviation. Another feature would be a fireworks display.

Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber, emphasized that the public and groups interested in the success of the May event must respond quickly since only three months remain before the car races. Several committees are to be appointed and the full cooperation of their chairmen and members will be necessary, he added.

Schools Add Extra Day Because Of Snow

Bad news is in store for pupils in Allegany County public schools who awoke happily yesterday to find that for the second time this week schools were closed.

There's a little catch involved with the "gift" of free days. Ralph R. Webster, school superintendent said yesterday that in order for the mandatory 180 school days be held, county schools will take a day from their Easter vacation schedule.

It was scheduled for schools to close for the vacation at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 13, and to resume classes Wednesday, April 20.

Now, since the two free days have been given which brought the scheduled school days down from 181 to 179, classes will resume Tuesday, April 19, in order to bring the total back to 180.

Court Probates Rusmisl Will

The will of Levi Clyde Rusmisl, who was an 87-year-old resident of 224 National Highway, LaVale, at the time of his death January 24, was probated yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Francis Theodore Bell, 224 National Highway, the deceased's son-in-law, qualified as executor under a $1,000 bond. The will, which was dated October 31, 1949, while Mr. Rusmisl lived in Topeka, Kan., provided that his estate should go to his wife should she survive him. However, she died last May 3. In view of the wife's death, the entire estate was left to his daughter, Mrs. Miriam Isabelle Rusmisl Bell.

Local Man Arraigned In Ohio

Jesse James Valentine, 32-year-old local resident who is wanted by Allegany County authorities in connection with a number of safecrackings, was arraigned yesterday in Akron Municipal Court on a fugitive charge.

Valentine was picked up Wednesday by the Ohio Highway Patrol on information furnished by Sgt. William F. Baker and Tte. Milton Hart, criminal investigators for the Maryland State Police.

Extradition proceedings against Valentine are pending disposition of the fugitive charge. Sgt. Baker said.

Valentine was implicated in a number of county safe jobs by three residents of the Bowman's Addition area who were captured last week in a concerted drive by State Police units of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The trio, James E. Crowe, 24; Olin C. Miller, 33, and 16-year-old James A. Hutzell, each were ordered held under $3,000 bond for action of the next grand jury. Hutzell is free under bond, while the other two are being held in the county lockup. Juvenile Court waived jurisdiction in the case against Hutzell.

Who Will Succeed Chiang Kai-shek?

The main problem facing the National Assembly of the Republic of China is what to do about Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the president of the government based on Taiwan, the term both the Nationalists and Communists use for Formosa. Chiang himself is the stumbling block.

The National Assembly resembles in one respect our own electoral college, in that it is convoked—every six years—to elect the president and vice president. It has further powers; on its own initiative it may amend the constitution adopted in 1947. It was under this instrument that Chiang was elected president in 1948 when still on the mainland, and re-elected on Formosa in 1954.

The constitution states without equivocation that a president who has served two terms may not be elected to a third. Chiang on December 23, 1958 announced his firm intention not to seek a third term.

Just a year later he addressed the Mainland Recovery Planning Board and reaffirmed his strict adherence to the constitution and his strong opposition to an amendment that would make possible a third term for him. He repeated this opposition at a social session of the National Assembly on Christmas Day.

The National Assembly is a popularly elected body. Its present members were chosen to represent all parts of China, as well as some overseas Chinese, in an election of 1948. When their six-year term was to expire in 1954 the Republic's High Court found constitutional authority for them to continue in office and thus to re-elect Chiang.

With Chiang firmly opposed to a constitutional amendment, the hope is that the High Court will come up with another emergency formula to keep Chiang on.

The vice president of the Republic is Chen Cheng. But Chiang's likely successor, if indeed he cannot be prevailed upon to stay on, would be his Russian-trained elder son, Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo, who directs the Nationalist cloak-and-dagger activities and strictly controls the police on Formosa.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Universal Sickness

In the relations among nations, the conversations still deal with war, the preparation for war, the aftermath of war, allies, antagonists, alliances. Even such a measure as "Atoms for Peace" can be twisted into a warlike device.

This is international pathology. It is a universal sickness. It eats into the entrails of every nation; it slows up human development; it diverts the wealth of the world from useful purposes to stockpiling for war.

In this connection, it is interesting to quote a paragraph from a speech by Walther Moreira Salles, Brazilian Ambassador to the United States:

"I am sure . . . that future financial operations with Brazil will be considered in the light of our record bearing in mind that the strengthening of our basic economic activities will make Brazil the powerful ally that the United States needs. . . . I am also sure that a great step forward will have been taken when the United States—secure in its wealth and power, grasping the present Brazilian economic, social and political conditions—will make available more public funds to other essential programs in which the governmental oil industry of my country should find its place."

There was a time when the American continents were a developing area which could no longer be open to European colonization. It may have been unbragable for the Latin American countries to have been protected by the Monroe Doctrine, a unilateral declaration by the United States, but they were given a breathing period which neither Asia nor Africa had. That they uniformly failed to take advantage of this opportunity was not our fault; perhaps it was in the essential difference between the Anglo-Saxon and the Latin nature.

Whatever the cause, the union of purpose of Brazil and the United States ought not to be based solely upon economic grounds. If that is all between the two countries, then an alliance is meaningless. We cannot drink all the coffee that Brazil and Colombia can produce; we cannot underwrite the enormous development that must take place in Brazil's economy. Our union must be based upon spiritual criteria which transcend economics. Ambassador Salles says:

" . . . The coffee producing countries are low-income countries. They cannot afford indefinitely to buy up surplus production and store it. They cannot afford to pay their producers to hold down production. Their only hope is to secure more orderly marketing of the coffee they produce, while hoping that consumption will somehow expand. The United States is by far the largest importer of coffee in the world. Unfortunately, in some high income countries in Europe imports of coffee are still held down, either by restriction or by high taxes. This is a heavy burden on the coffee producing countries, a burden we are eager to see lifted."

The solution for the coffee-producing countries is to diversify production. Brazil is one of the richest countries on Earth in terms of natural resources. Its people cling to a comparatively narrow maritime area. President Kubitschek has, with a courage rarely witnessed in these days of degenerate politics, risked everything to build the city of Brasilia sufficiently inland to force his nation to recognize its immensity and its economic possibilities.

In this country, most that is known about Brasilia is the bankers' view that it has caused Brazilian money to depreciate. Actually, building this city may be responsible for changing the character of Brazil, of making it the foremost country of Latin America and in perhaps as little as a century bringing Brazil forward as the economic equal of the United States.

On the other hand, if the dead hand of political stupidity falls upon it, Brasilia could become a second Angkor—a lost city in a vast jungle, with vines growing over its structures and wild animals howling in its miserable temples.

The misfortune of one-crop countries and one-product countries is that they forget that substitute products can drive their single product out of markets. Where is Japan's silk today? Where are the textiles of the Near East, the incense of Yemen? On the other hand, Japan is today selling nylon and plastic products and the most important product of the Near East is oil. The world can survive without coffee, but it could use in normal commerce the richness of Brazil.

'G'wan, Beat It - This'll Hold Us Up!'

The Spectacle Of The Disarmament Mess

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON During the past fortnight, this city has offered a spectacle that has been richly comic, not a little humiliating, and almost incredible, all at once.

Ministerial representatives of Britain, France, Italy, and Canada came here close to two weeks ago, in order to discuss with the American government the Western position on disarmament. East-West disarmament talks are due to be reopened on March 15. After that date looms the summit meeting, in May, with top level disarmament talks conspicuous on the agenda. The need for an agreed Western position is therefore urgent, to put it mildly.

Yet for ten days, the American policy-makers had to avoid substantive discussions with their British, French, Italian, and Canadian guests, for the beautifully simple, frankly confessed reason that the American government had not yet decided what its own position on disarmament ought to be.

Last Tuesday, a lame, empty American "position" paper was offered to the allied conferees. But this not only failed to satisfy the British, French, and other allied representatives. It also by no means represented the views of the State Department. And as these words are written, the final, intra-Administration debate about the American disarmament position is at last under way.

These extraordinary facts are far from exhausting this episode's sheer fantasy. American and Soviet negotiators had been talking about disarmament, almost non-stop, from 1955 onwards until a year or so ago. But last summer, a new committee headed by the Boston lawyer, Charles Coolidge, was suddenly named for the avowed purpose of making up the American government's mind about disarmament.

While the Coolidge Committee labored, our diplomats freely told our allies that they could not tackle the disarmament problem until the Coolidge Committee had made up the Administration's mind about it. At length, a report emerged from the Committee's labors. It was promptly christened the "mouse" in the inner circle, since it included virtually no disarmament proposals at all. And for this reason, the report was promptly interred as altogether too fruitless.

By this time, another lawyer, the able New Yorker, Frederick Eaton, had been named to present the U.S. brief on disarmament. But Eaton had no brief to present after the internment of the Coolidge report. So the struggle began all over again. And it went on long enough to leave this country's representatives at first irresolutely mute and then dimly mumbling, at a conference with Western allied representatives planned many weeks earlier.

The reason for all this is a deep division in the government. The State Department, and especially Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, thinks that we must certainly talk about nuclear disarmament, if we talk about disarmament at all. The Atomic Energy Commission and particularly the Commission Chairman, John R. McCone, favors discussion of nuclear disarmament with extra emphasis on the need for a broad framework of general disarmament. But the Defense Department policy-makers, and above all the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have taken the position that any dis-

Secretary Of Ike's Cabinet Causes Bomb Scare By Shaving On Plane

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Robert K. Gray, secretary of the Eisenhower Cabinet, almost caused a bomb scare on an airplane en route to St. Louis last week.

Mr. Gray, a fastidious gentleman, likes to shave on airplanes. And he has just purchased a cordless, non-electric portable shaver in Europe for quick, clean use on airplanes. It doesn't have to be plugged into a socket. So Cabinet secretary Gray, proud of his purchase, decided to freshen up before his arrival in St. Louis. Pulling out his battery shaver, he proceeded to apply it to his chin.

A passenger just ahead was startled. He did not know that the secretary of President Eisenhower's Cabinet was seated behind him. Nor did he know that this distinguished passenger had to speak before several hundred Republicans in St. Louis that evening. He had merely read about queer noises and queer passengers who might be carrying bombs on airplanes. Frantically the passenger began ringing for the stewardess.

Cabinet secretary Gray, seeing that the noise bothered the man upfront, tucked the razor into his briefcase and started for the washroom. This was a mistake. Various passengers had read stories about the plane over North Carolina in which a bomb had exploded in the washroom. However, both washrooms were occupied, and Gray, waiting in the aisle, placed a briefcase at his feet. Inadvertently he stumbled over the brief case. From within came a loud sound of buzzing. The razor had self-started.

People grew pale, women suppressed screams, the pilot and stewardess descended upon Gray. They grabbed the briefcase — and him. After cautious scrutiny, the pilot explained to the passengers that all was well. He did not explain that the secretary of the Eisenhower Cabinet had caused the panic.

Note—Bob Gray is now taking lessons on the use of an old-fashioned straight razor.

"Join ICA And See The World"

Here is one reason the White House will have a hard time getting Ike's request for $4 billion plus of foreign aid money from Congress.

Recently Leonard Saccio, acting foreign aid director and the man who helps administer what Congress appropriates, spent $56,000 on an airplane junket around the world for himself, his wife, and other International Cooperation Administration officials.

Using a special Air Force plane, Saccio flew on a so-called inspection trip. He took with him assistant ICA director Alvin Roseman, and a dozen subordinates. Though Hong Kong receives no foreign aid from the USA, it was an important stop for the Saccio party. It is one of the best and cheapest shopping centers in the world.

Simultaneously, the State Department, over-all administrator of foreign aid, has refused to help find two tickets for the Mayor of Konya, Turkey, on a people-to-people visit to Torrance, Calif. The citizens of Torrance have worked out a people-to-people relationship with Konya and are scheduling a big hands-across-the-sea celebration February 26.

Trans World Airlines generously offered to fly the Turkish mayor or across the Atlantic if it could get an OK from the State Department. Otherwise it would be in violation of the international airlines agreement. But Henry Snowden, the State Department official in charge of international air agreements, politely and firmly said no. There were too many mayors of cities scheduled to visit the USA on people-to-people missions, he said, and he had to protect the airlines.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower has urged people-to-people

friendship as a national policy.

Meanwhile also, acting ICA director Saccio spent $56,000 of the taxpayers' money on a special plane "inspection trip" around the world. The motto in Washington is no longer "Join the Navy and See the World," but "Join ICA and fly round the world in 30 days."

Nix On George Washington

On the eve of George Washington's birthday and just following the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, it's learned that an official government order will not permit the portraits of these two Presidents to be displayed in regional offices of the National Labor Relations Board.

The directive was issued by the NLRB's new general counsel, Stuart Rothman, who states:

"An official portrait of the President of the United States shall be displayed in a respectful manner in the reception room of each regional office or field office of the NLRB. The reception room shall display no other portrait or photograph of any kind."

This means the trash can for such favorite government pinups as Washington and Lincoln.

"Write-In Rocky"

An interesting ad appeared in the "Harvard Crimson" recently, paid for by the "Write-In-Rocky" club.

The ad urged Harvard students to give up a day during February week ends to go to New Hampshire and persuade New Hampshire voters to write in Nelson Rockefeller's name during the March 8 primary.

"Although Governor Rockefeller's name will not be on the New Hampshire ballot," says the Write-In-Rocky club, "a substantial write-in return would help the Republican party make a searching re-examination of the choice which it has imposed on all of us. The myth of Richard Nixon's suitability for the presidency has gone quite far enough."

Note—In 1952 Eisenhower forces organized a terrific write-in campaign in Minnesota, South Dakota, and other states to beat Taft. The write in was largely successful. However, the Eisenhower people had thousands of dollars and a skilled public relations machine behind them. In New Hampshire the Harvard students have no money and no machine. Rockefeller himself is remaining aloof.

A Case History

By Leslie Gould

"A good case history of what a guy's faced with under today's tax laws."

The quote is from George Romney, who, as president of American Motors, has done one of the outstanding jobs in private industry in recent years.

He is explaining his sale of 10,000 shares of American Motors at $90 a share — $900,000—which under a stock option granted him by the company had cost $9.56 a share or $95,600.

His total purchases on options at that price were 20,500 shares, and he still has unexercised options for 14,500 shares. Additionally he has options at $31.82½ a share and at $56.29 a share.

American Motors is currently around $69 a share. It sold as high as $91.50 in January. The recent all-time high for American Motors is $96.87½.

Mr. Romney became president of American Motors in the Autumn of 1958. George Mason, who five months previously had put through a merger of Nash-Kelvinator and Hudson Motors, died suddenly and Romney, who had resigned as president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association to join Mason at Nash in 1948, took over as president, chairman and general manager.

The stock that year — 1954 — sold as low as $9.75. This was the year Mr. Romney got his first options, which in all cases were 5 per cent below the market on the day the options were granted.

For the next three years and into 1958 that option wasn't any good — the stock was selling most of the time below the option price. The low for 1955 was $8.50, for 1956 and '57 $5.25 and in '58 $8 but it went up that year to $41.50.

It was not until 1958 that the company got back into black ink. It lost $11 million in '54, $19¼ million in '55, $25½ million in '56 and nearly $5½ million in '57.

The turn around actually came in '57, when the company began to make a dent on the market with its compact car — the Rambler being the first real American entrant in that field. The company in '57 made 88,526 Ramblers, 148,878 in '58 and 337,120 in the '59 fiscal year.

So far in the 1960 model year retail deliveries have reached 136,109 Ramblers against 102,556 in the corresponding period of '59.

The man responsible for the turn around is George Romney and the team he developed.

Under present tax laws, there is no way of properly rewarding efforts such as his — except through stock options. On this just reported transaction, he grossed $900,000, and, having been a salaried man all his life, he had to borrow money to exercise the options. He will probably have to do the same if, as and when he exercises his remaining options. Under SEC rules he has to wait six months to do so — that is, not before July.

Under SEC insider reporting rules transactions by company officers, directors and 10 per cent stockholders must be reported by the 10th of the following month. Mr. Romney reported his 10,000-share sales in January on February 8 — a Monday. The Friday before — February 5 — the stock had closed at $86.62½. The closing February 16 was $69 — a loss in that period of $13.62½, but $9.50 of that loss was in two days — February 15 and 16.

As a result of this drop, Mr. Romney called a press conference, at which he explained:

"I want to make it absolutely clear that I did not sell because of any lack of confidence in American Motors. On the contrary, the future of the company is brighter than any previous point in its history and I will buy more stock as soon as it is legally possible."

Then, he made this non-sequitur:

"If I were going to buy more, I had to sell some to get the money."

Actually, there was no pressure to exercise the options, for they run for 10 years.

The episode shows that some better way of rewarding executives who do an outstanding job needs to be found than through stock options.

KENNEDY'S HOME — While the nation's leading Democrats were in Washington, Senator John F. Kennedy (D), Massachusetts, invited a hundred or so of the top echelon to his Georgetown home for cocktails.

Some of them left with confused impressions of his Washington residence. Georgetown is one of the most fashionable residential districts in the nation's capital. It is comprised of Eighteenth and Nineteenth century homes expensively restored.

To some of the Democratic bigwigs, especially those from the west, the three-story home seemed small and cramped, especially under the onslaught of the visiting horde.

The well-wishers were jammed into rooms on two of the floors, the top story being declared off-limits to the disappointment of some of the ladies who wanted to sneak a look into the bedroom closets.

Actually, Georgetown homes come high. Choice ones sell for $60,000 and up, and seemingly have no relation to one's usual ideas of real estate values.

Some of the visitors referred to the home as the Kennedy "apartment." Others thought it was modest of the multi-millionaire's son to live in such an inconspicuous dwelling.

Kennedy was the only Democratic presidential aspirant to invite the leaders to his home. Some others met groups in hotel suites.

An informal check on reaction to the cocktail party indicated that Kennedy has scored a plus for his efforts. Among those invited, particularly the ladies, there was no end of kind things said about Kennedy and his pretty, young wife, "Jackie," for their graciousness and hospitality.

Some Countries Have Stamped Out Rabies

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Rabies can be eliminated in the United States by enforcing strict preventive measures. It worked in England, so why not here? The disease was common in the British Isles until the latter part of the 19th Century when laws were passed making it mandatory to license and muzzle all dogs and to quarantine incoming animals for six months observation. All unlicensed strays were captured and destroyed humanely.

The disease was eradicated by these simple measures. The same results were obtained in Ireland, Denmark, Norway, Hawaii, and Australia. The use of a preventive vaccine on pets is advocated also.

Man usually develops rabies from a sick dog or cat. These animals acquire the infection from strays or from cattle or wildlife. Skunks, foxes, raccoons, opossums, ground hogs, deer, and bats are the principal vectors. The main connecting links between wildlife and man are his pets. Protect them with a vaccine and the link is broken. The pet benefits, too, because rabies is fatal to all animals, including man.

A rabies control program must begin with the animal owner. Owning or maintaining a pet is a responsibility. The animal should be registered or licensed for purposes of identification and immunized against rabies every two years.

All unknown or stray animals must be eliminated in a safe and humane manner. This requires a perpetual community program but it pays dividends by protecting humans, pets, and live stock from being bitten.

The ideal program includes wild animal controls, especially in areas where rabies crops out from time to time. These animals should be eliminated from the immediate vicinity of cities, towns, and farm sites.

BILIARY COLIC

G. J. writes: I still get attacks of colic even though my gall bladder was removed 13 years ago. During each attack I can't eat and lose about seven pounds. Can anything be done to eliminate these attacks?

REPLY

Gall bladder disease is not the only cause of biliary colic. A residual stone in the tube (common duct) leading from the liver to the intestines may be responsible. More X-rays and perhaps an exploratory operation may be needed to determine the cause.

REPLY

In my opinion, a consultation is in order.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Who Will Succeed Chiang Kai-shek?

The main problem facing the National Assembly of the Republic of China is what to do about Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the president of the government based on Taiwan, the term both the Nationalists and Communists use for Formosa. Chiang himself is the stumbling block.

The National Assembly resembles in one respect our own electoral college, in that it is convoked—every six years—to elect the president and vice president. It has further powers; on its own initiative it may amend the constitution adopted in 1947. It was under this instrument that Chiang was elected president in 1948 when still on the mainland, and re-elected on Formosa in 1954.

The constitution states without equivocation that a president who has served two terms may not be elected to a third. Chiang on December 23, 1958 announced his firm intention not to seek a third term.

Just a year later he addressed the Mainland Recovery Planning Board and reaffirmed his strict adherence to the constitution and his strong opposition to an amendment that would make possible a third term for him. He repeated this opposition at a social session of the National Assembly on Christmas Day.

The National Assembly is a popularly elected body. Its present members were chosen to represent all parts of China, as well as some overseas Chinese, in an election of 1948. When their six-year term was to expire in 1954 the Republic's High Court found constitutional authority for them to continue in office and thus to re-elect Chiang.

With Chiang firmly opposed to a constitutional amendment, the hope is that the High Court will come up with another emergency formula to keep Chiang on.

The vice president of the Republic is Chen Cheng, But Chiang's likely successor, if indeed he cannot be prevailed upon to stay on, would be his Russian-trained elder son, Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo, who directs the Nationalist cloak-and-dagger activities and strictly controls the police on Formosa.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Universal Sickness

In the relations among nations, the conversations still deal with war, the preparation for war, the aftermath of war, allies, antagonists, alliances. Even such a measure as "Atoms for Peace" can be twisted into a warlike device.

This is international pathology. It is a universal sickness. It eats into the entrails of every nation; it slows up human development; it diverts the wealth of the world from useful purposes to stockpiling for war.

In this connection, it is interesting to quote a paragraph from a speech by Walther Moreira Salles, Brazilian Ambassador to the United States:

"I am sure . . . that future financial operations with Brazil will be considered in the light of our record bearing in mind that the strengthening of our basic economic activities will make Brazil the powerful ally that the United States needs. . . . I am also sure that a great step forward will have been taken when the United States — secure in its wealth and power, grasping the present Brazilian economic, social and political conditions — will make available more public funds to other essential programs in which the governmental oil industry of my country should find its place."

There was a time when the American continents were a developing area which could no longer be open to European colonization. It may have been unambiguous for the Latin American countries to have been protected by the Monroe Doctrine, a unilateral declaration by the United States, but they were given a breathing period which neither Asia nor Africa had. That they uniformly failed to take advantage of this opportunity was not our fault; perhaps it was in the essential difference between the Anglo-Saxon and the Latin nature.

Whatever the cause, the union of purpose of Brazil and the United States ought not to be based solely upon economic grounds. If that is all between the two countries, then an alliance is meaningless. We cannot drink all the coffee that Brazil and Colombia can produce; we cannot underwrite the enormous development that must take place in Brazil's economy. Our union must be based upon spiritual criteria which transcend economics. Ambassador Salles says:

" . . . The coffee producing countries are low-income countries. They cannot afford indefinitely to buy up surplus production and store it. They cannot afford to pay their producers to hold down production. Their only hope is to secure more orderly marketing of the coffee they produce, while hoping that consumption will somehow expand. The United States is by far the largest importer of coffee in the world. Unfortunately, in some high income countries in Europe imports of coffee are still held down, either by restriction or by high taxes. This is a heavy burden on the coffee producing countries, a burden we are eager to see lifted."

The solution for the coffee-producing countries is to diversify production. Brazil is one of the richest countries on Earth in terms of natural resources. Its people cling to a comparatively narrow maritime area. President Kubitschek has, with a courage rarely witnessed in these days of degenerate politics, risked everything to build the city of Brasilia sufficiently inland to force his nation to recognize its immensity and its economic possibilities.

In this country, most that is known about Brasilia is the bankers' view that it has caused Brazilian money to depreciate. Actually, building this city may be responsible for changing the character of Brazil, of making it the foremost country of Latin America and in perhaps as little as a century bringing Brazil forward as the economic equal of the United States.

On the other hand, if the dead hand of political stupidity falls upon it, Brasilia could become a second Angkor—a lost city in a vast jungle, with vines growing over its structures and wild animals housing in its beautiful temples.

The misfortune of one-crop countries and one-product countries is that they forget that substitute products can drive their single product out of markets. Where is Japan's silk today? Where are the textiles of the Near East, the incense of Yemen? On the other hand, Japan is today selling nylon and plastic products and the most important product of the Near East is oil. The world can survive without coffee, but it could use in normal commerce the richness of Brazil.

'G'wan, Beat It - This'll Hold Us Up!

The Spectacle Of The Disarmament Mess

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON
During the past fortnight, this city has offered a spectacle that has been richly comic, not a little humiliating, and almost incredible, all at once.

Ministerial representatives of Britain, France, Italy, and Canada came here close to two weeks ago, in order to discuss with the American government the Western position on disarmament. East-West disarmament talks are due to be reopened on March 15. After that date looms the summit meeting, in May, with top level disarmament talks conspicuous on the agenda. The need for an agreed Western position is therefore urgent, to put it mildly.

Yet for ten days, the American policy-makers had to avoid substantive discussions with their British, French, Italian, and Canadian guests, for the beautifully simple, frankly confessed reason that the American government had not yet decided what its own position on disarmament ought to be.

Last Tuesday, a lame, empty American "position" paper was offered to the allied conferees. But this not only failed to satisfy the British, French, and other allied representatives. It also by no means represented the views of the State Department. And as these words are written, the final, intra-Administration debate about the American disarmament position is at last under way.

These extraordinary facts are far from exhausting this episode's sheer fantasy. American and Soviet negotiators had been talking about disarmament, almost non-stop, from 1955 onwards until a year or so ago. But last summer, a new committee headed by the Boston lawyer, Charles Coolidge, was suddenly named for the avowed purpose of making up the American government's mind about disarmament.

While the Coolidge Committee labored, our diplomats freely told our allies that they could not tackle the disarmament problem until the Coolidge Committee had made up the Administration's mind about it. At length, a report emerged from the Committee's labors. It was promptly christened the "mouse" in the inner circle, since it included virtually no disarmament proposals at all. And for this reason, the report was promptly interred as altogether too fruitless.

By this time, another lawyer, the able New Yorker, Frederick Eaton, had been named to present the U.S. brief on disarmament. But Eaton had no brief to present after the interment of the Coolidge report. So the struggle began all over again. And it went on long enough to leave this country's representatives at first irresolutely mute and then dimly mumbling, at a conference with Western allied representatives planned many weeks earlier.

The reason for all this is a deep division in the government. The State Department, and especially Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, thinks that we must certainly talk about nuclear disarmament, if we talk about disarmament at all. The Atomic Energy Commission and particularly the Commission Chairman, John R. McCone, favors discussion of nuclear disarmament with extra emphasis on the need for a broad framework of general disarmament. But the Defense Department policy-makers, and above all the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have taken the position that any discussion of nuclear disarmament is unthinkable. On the other hand, the old psychology of nuclear monopoly obstinately survives in the Pentagon, in flat defiance of the grim facts of recent history. On the other hand, it is thought to be too expensive and too painful, nowadays, for Western nations to put ground armies in the field, as they once used to do. Hence the Pentagon argues that the West dare not lay down its nuclear weapons while confronted with the populous "hordes" of Russians and Chinese.

It was this psychology that made the Coolidge report so mouselike. It was this psychology that caused the American position paper of last Tuesday to be such an impoverished thing, including no really major proposals, and with no commitment in all its six pages to discuss nuclear disarmament at any time, even in the distant future after proved success in the so-called first stages.

After the British, French, and the rest protested this position paper's emptiness, Secretary Herter was at length enabled to appeal the great issue to President Eisenhower. Essentially, the question Herter has had to ask the President is whether or not we really want disarmament, after having given vent to so much moral blather on the subject. All the trouble arose, of course, from the President's failure to decide this absolutely basic question at the very outset.

This is dangerous trouble, too. There are clear signs of the same kind of split in the Soviet government that exists in the American government, with the majority, headed by Nikita S. Khrushchev, really wanting to see serious disarmament is not possible. There is one chance in three, or four, or five, of really accomplishing something. But the chance will surely pass if the American government merely continues to flounder in its self-made bog of interdepartmental committees.

Secretary Of Ike's Cabinet Causes Bomb Scare By Shaving On Plane

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Robert K. Gray, secretary of the Eisenhower Cabinet, almost caused a bomb scare on an airplane en route to St. Louis last week.

Mr. Gray, a fastidious gentleman, likes to shave on airplanes. And he has just purchased a cordless, non-electric portable shaver in Europe for quick, clean use on airplanes. It doesn't have to be plugged into a socket. So Cabinet secretary Gray, proud of his purchase, decided to freshen up before his arrival in St. Louis. Pulling out his battery shaver, he proceeded to apply it to his chin.

A passenger just ahead was startled. He did not know that the secretary of President Eisenhower's Cabinet was seated behind him. Nor did he know that this distinguished passenger had to speak before several hundred Republicans in St. Louis that evening. He had merely read about queer noises and queer passengers who might be carrying bombs on airplanes. Frantically the passenger began ringing for the stewardess.

Cabinet secretary Gray, seeing that the noise bothered the man upfront, tucked the razor into his briefcase and started for the washroom. This was a mistake. Various passengers had read stories about the plane over North Carolina in which a bomb had exploded in the washroom. However, both washrooms were occupied, and Gray, waiting in the aisle, placed a briefcase at his feet. Inadvertently he stumbled over the brief case. From within came a loud sound of buzzing. The razor had self-started.

People grew pale, women suppressed screams, the pilot and stewardess descended upon Gray. They grabbed the briefcase — and him. After cautious scrutiny, the pilot explained to the passengers that all was well. He did not explain that the secretary of the Eisenhower Cabinet had caused the panic.

Note—Bob Gray is now taking lessons on the use of an old-fashioned straight razor.

"Join ICA And See The World"
Here is one reason the White House will have a hard time getting Ike's request for $4 billion plus of foreign aid money from Congress.

Recently Leonard Saccio, acting foreign aid director and the man who helps administer what Congress appropriates, spent $36,000 on an airplane junket around the world for himself, his wife, and other International Cooperation Administration officials.

Using a special Air Force plane, Saccio flew on a so-called inspection trip. He took with him assistant ICA director Alvin Roseman, and a dozen subordinates. Though Hong Kong receives no foreign aid from the USA, it was an important stop for the Saccio party. It is one of the best and cheapest shopping centers in the world.

Simultaneously, the State Department, over-all administrator of foreign aid, has refused to help find two tickets for the Mayor of Konya, Turkey, on a people-to-people visit to Torrance, Calif. The citizens of Torrance have worked out a people-to-people relationship with Konya and are scheduling a big hands-across-the-sea celebration February 26.

Trans World Airlines generously offered to fly the Turkish mayor across the Atlantic if it could get an OK from the State Department. Otherwise it would be in violation of the international airlines agreement. But Henry Snowden, the State Department official in charge of international air agreements, politely and firmly said no. There were too many mayors of cities scheduled to visit the USA on people-to-people missions, he said, and he had to protect the airlines.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower has urged people-to-people

friendship as a national policy.

Meanwhile also, acting ICA director Saccio spent $56,060 of the taxpayers' money on a special plane "inspection trip" around the world. The motto in Washington is no longer "Join the Navy and See the World," but "Join ICA and fly round the world in 30 days."

Nix On George Washington

On the eve of George Washington's birthday and just following the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, it's learned that an official government order will not permit the portraits of these two Presidents to be displayed in regional offices of the National Labor Relations Board.

The directive was issued by the NLRB's new general counsel, Stuart Rothman, who states:

"An official portrait of the President of the United States shall be displayed in a respectful manner in the reception room of each regional office or field office of the NLRB. The reception room shall display no other portrait or photograph of any kind."

This means the trash can for such favorite government pinups as Washington and Lincoln.

"Write-In Rocky"

An interesting ad appeared in the "Harvard Crimson" recently, paid for by the "Write-In-Rocky" club.

The ad urged Harvard students to give up a day during February week ends to go to New Hampshire and persuade New Hampshire voters to write in Nelson Rockefeller's name during the March 8 primary.

"Although Governor Rockefeller's name will not be on the New Hampshire ballot," says the Write-In-Rocky club, "a substantial write-in return would help the Republican party make a searching re-examination of the choice which it has imposed on all of us. The myth of Richard Nixon's suitability for the presidency has gone quite far enough."

Note—In 1952 Eisenhower forces organized a terrific write-in campaign in Minnesota, South Dakota, and other states to beat Taft. The write in was largely successful. However, the Eisenhower people had thousands of dollars and a skilled public relations machine behind them. In New Hampshire the Harvard students have no money and no machine. Rockefeller himself is remaining aloof.

A Case History

By Leslie Gould

"A good case history of what a guy's faced with under today's tax laws."

The quote is from George Romney, who, as president of American Motors, has done one of the outstanding jobs in private industry in recent years.

He is explaining his sale of 10,000 shares of American Motors at $90 a share — $900,000—which under a stock option granted him by the company had cost $9.56 a share or $95,600.

His total purchases on options at that price were 20,500 shares, and he still has unexercised options for 14,500 shares. Additionally he has options at $31.82½ a share and at $36.29 a share.

American Motors is currently around $69 a share. It sold as high as $91.50 in January. The recent all-time high for American Motors is $96.37½.

Mr. Romney became president of American Motors in the Autumn of 1958. George Mason, who five months previously had put through a merger of Nash-Kelvinator and Hudson Motors, died suddenly and Romney, who had resigned as president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association to join Mason at Nash in 1948, took over as president, chairman and general manager.

The stock that year — 1954 — sold as low as $9.75. This was the year Mr. Romney got his first options, which in all cases were 5 per cent below the market on the day the options were granted.

For the next three years and into 1958 that option wasn't any good — the stock was selling most of the time below the option price. The low for 1955 was $8.50, for 1956 and '57 $5.25 and '58 $8 but it went up that year to $41.50. It was not until 1958 that the company got back into black ink. It lost $11 million in '54, $19¼ million in '55, $23½ million in '56 and nearly $5½ million in '57.

The turn around actually came in '57, when the company began to make a dent on the market with its compact car — the Rambler being the first real American entrant in that field. The company in '57 made 88,526 Ramblers, 148,878 in '58 and 337,120 in the '59 fiscal year.

So far in the 1960 model year retail deliveries have reached 136,109 Ramblers against 102,556 in the corresponding period of '59.

The man responsible for the turn around is George Romney and the team he developed.

Under present tax laws, there is no way of properly rewarding efforts such as his — except through stock options. On this just reported transaction, he grossed $900,000, and, having been a salaried man all his life, he had to borrow money to exercise the options. He will probably have to do the same if, as and when he exercises his remaining options. Under SEC rules he has to wait six months to do so — that is, not before July.

Under SEC insider reporting rules transactions by company officers, directors and 10 per cent stockholders must be reported by the 10th of the following month. Mr. Romney reported his 10,000-share sales in January on February 8 — a Monday. The Friday before — February 5 — the stock had closed at $86.62½. The closing February 16 was $69 — a loss in that period of $13.62½, but $9.50 of that loss was in two days — February 15 and 16.

As a result of this drop, Mr. Romney called a press conference, at which he explained:

"I want to make it absolutely clear that I did not sell because of any lack of confidence in American Motors. On the contrary, the future of the company is brighter than any previous point in its history and I will buy more stock as soon as it is legally possible."

Then, he made this non-sequitur:

"If I were going to buy more, I had to sell some to get the money."

Actually, there was no pressure to exercise the options, for they run for 10 years.

The episode shows that some better way of rewarding executives who do an outstanding job needs to be found than through stock options.

Allegany's Campers stayed in the running for a share of the city and CVAL championships last night by scoring a 66-56 victory over a Fort Hill team whose first half play gave an estimated 1400 fans at the Sentinel gym visions of seeing a major upset in the making.

The triumph was the 14th in 19 starts for Coach Chet Payne's Campers, who closed out their WMI League schedule with a title-copping 9-1 mark. Two other WMI League games slated last night—Valley at Bruce and Beall at Mt. Savage—were postponed because of adverse weather conditions and will be played next Friday night.

Local fans will be focusing their attention next Friday on the return match between Allegany and LaSalle at Campobello. LaSalle won the opener, 52-50, and next week's attraction promises to draw the largest crowd in the history of the city into Allegany's new cage quarters, where the Campers have posted a 9-0 record. A victory for LaSalle (3-0) will give the Explorers the city crown, while Allegany (2-1) can tie the race by winning.

Pope Leads Drive

A blistering offensive attack, led by Mervin Pope, brought the Campers from behind in the third period after they had trailed at one time by 11 points.

Fort Hill held a 33-25 lead at intermission mainly on the strength of a hot shooting performance which found the Sentinels connecting on 16 of 35 tries from the floor for a near .500 percentage.

A jump shot by Glen Shipway and free throw by Jim Rice increased the Sentinels' advantage to 36-25, then the Alco onslaught began. Two field goals by Pope, and a fielder and foul conversion each by Bob Gaffney and Jerry Pentoney quickly sliced the margin to three points, 36-33.

A pair of foul tosses by Allegany's Wayne Shook tied things up at 39-34, knocking Fort Hill out of the lead for the first time since midway in the opening quarter when a driving layup by Shook knotted the score at 10-10.

After Rice hit on a foul to give the Sentinels the upper hand again, Pentoney, on the drive, got a two-pointer that gave Allegany a lead it never relinquished. The third period ended with the Campers on top, 45-40, with Pope accounting for 12 of the 20 points scored by the visitors in the quarter.

Bounce Back

Allegany opened up an 11-point lead in the final frame, but the Sentinels bounced back and showed some signs of overtaking their cross-town rivals.

George Twigg fouled out for Fort Hill with 3:18 remaining and was replaced by sophomore Roger Manges, who came through with several timely buckets that narrowed the gap to four points, 58-54.

Manges tallied on a shot under the basket, then came through with a pair of penalty pitches, and seconds later clicked on another layup following a steal executed by the Sentinels when Allegany was taking the ball out of bounds. This made the score 58-54 with about 1:50 to go.

Shook and Pentoney each made one of two foul tries before Dick Bittner canned a pair for Fort Hill. The difference was still four points but time was running out on the Red Raiders, only 52 seconds left when Bittner made his foul attempts, which turned out to be the last scoring done by the Fort Hill crew. CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The inability of patrons to reach Charles Town race track Friday forced officials to cancel the horse races.

Four inches of snow fell here Friday but it was preceded by freezing rain and sleet that left highways sheets of ice. Other areas of West Virginia were covered by two to three feet of snow.

Officials said the track was in "pretty good shape" and the races could have been held.

Racing will be resumed Saturday and no request would be made to the West Virginia Racing Commission to extend the meet past the scheduled closing day on Monday, officials said.

Len Matthews Defeats Godih In Savage Go

Algerian Floored Once In N.Y. Fight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Len Matthews, young Philadelphia lightweight contender, beat veteran Lahouari Godih of Algeria Friday night with right smashes to the head that floored him once and sapped some of his steam for a split decision in his savage 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Matthews, weighing 135½ pounds to Godih's 136½, won the verdict by a scanty two-point margin, when Judge Leo Birnbaum called the bout even on rounds, but favored Matthews on points, 7-5.

Referee Harry Kessler had Matthews ahead on rounds, 5-4-1; but Judge Tony Castellani favored Godih, 5-4-1. The United International had Matthews ahead 6-4.

It was an excellent fight in which 20-year-old Matthews, the 2-1 favorite, had the punching power and 30-year-old Godih, former champion of France, had the skill.

In the early rounds it seemed that rangy Godih and his piston left jab and repeated left hooks would be the tell-tale weapons in a boxing lesson for Matthews.

But in the third round young Len began to find the range with his right smashes to the head. Godih fought back well in the fourth, although he was twice knocked into the ropes with rights.

From then on Matthews's smashes began to take their effect, although Godih rallied desperately in the sixth. In the seventh, Matthews floored Godih with a right to the chin. The Algerian went down on his haunches but was up at the count of two and took the rest of the mandatory eight-count on his feet.

Matthews took the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds on the score sheets of all three ring officials, but Godih again rallied remarkably to take the 10th on all three sheets.

EDDIE BRENNAN

EDWARD J. "Eddie" Brennan was honored by the Jockey Agents Guild as racing's man of the year at a banquet the other day in the Carillon Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla.

Brennan got off to a flustered start in his acceptance speech when one of the scantily clad nymphs popped out of the wings and gave him a lusty lip-stick-smeared buzz.

Joe Williams, the noted sports columnist, said: "This was not the first time Eddie has been mistaken for Cary Grant."

Brennan, beginning his 50th year in racing, a career which has seen him function in every capacity save training and riding, helped formulate the regulations under which jockey agents now operate, including the highly important one which restricts one agent to two jockeys, one journeyman rider and one apprentice rider.

Previously there had been no restriction either as to the number of jockeys an agent could represent or the number of agents a jockey could have.

Brennan was racing secretary for the Cumberland Fair Association for 21 years, commencing with the first five-day meeting at Fairgo in 1925. Eddie is now vice president and general manager of Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N. J.

Mr. Goldsworthy has served as secretary of the 19-school circuit for the past eight years and has done a commendable job.

"I am grateful for the opportunity to have served as secretary for the past eight years," Goldsworthy stated. "I have enjoyed the work and I certainly appreciate the many courtesies extended me."

Leaving via the foul route in addition to Twigg were Fort Hill's Rice and Bill Colbert, and Shook of Allegany. Rice left at the 1:28 mark. Shook departed with 52 seconds to go, and Colbert exited with just a matter of seconds showing on the clock.

Pope topped all scorers with 21 points, which included nine field goals in 18 tries and a 3-7 effort at the foul line. Gaffney was right behind with 18 points, half of which came in the first period, and Pentoney contributed 12 tallies to the winning cause. Charles Town Cancels Races

Hopes To Present Full Card Today

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.

(UPI)—The inability of patrons to reach Charles Town race track Friday forced officials to cancel the horse races.

Four inches of snow fell here Friday but it was preceded by freezing rain and sleet that left highways sheets of ice. Other areas of West Virginia were covered by two to three feet of snow.

Officials said the track was in "pretty good shape" and the races could have been held.

Racing will be resumed Saturday and no request would be made to the West Virginia Racing Commission to extend the meet past the scheduled closing day on Monday, officials said.

Shenandoah Downs Dates Announced

Shenandoah Downs officers are meeting in New York with General Manager Robert G. Leavitt, Publicity Director Bill McDonald and Comptroller Zev "Bill" Schwadron to complete plans and details regarding the operating policy here during the 1960 meetings.

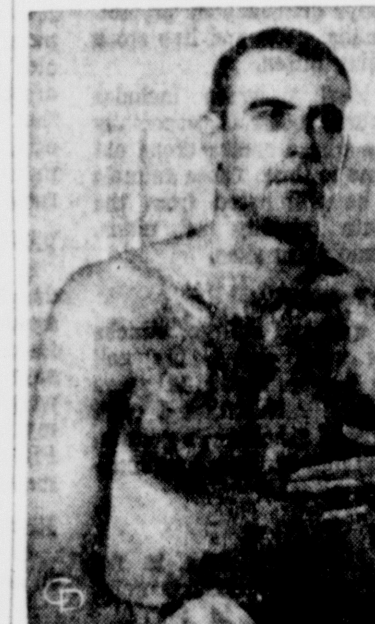

The spring meeting will open on Saturday, April 31, for 31 nights, while the summer meet gets under way, July 5, and runs for 71 programs of thoroughbred racing under the million watt lighting system. This gives Shenandoah 102 nights of racing, ending September 24.

Len Matthews Defeats Godih In Savage Go

Algerian Floored Once In N.Y. Fight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Len Matthews, young Philadelphia lightweight contender, beat veteran Lahouari Godih of Algeria Friday night with right smashes to the head that floored him once and sapped some of his steam for a split decision in their savage 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Matthews, weighing 135½ pounds to Godih's 136½, won the verdict by a scanty two-point margin, when Judge Leo Birnbaum called the bout even on rounds, but favored Matthews on points, 7-5.

Referee Harry Kessler had Matthews ahead on rounds, 5-4-1; but Judge Tony Castellani favored Godih, 5-4-1. The United International had Matthews ahead 6-4.

It was an excellent fight in which 20-year-old Matthews, the 2-1 favorite, had the punching power and 30-year-old Godih, former champion of France, had the skill.

In the early rounds it seemed that rangy Godih and his piston left jabs and repeated left hooks would be the tell-tale weapons in a boxing lesson for Matthews.

But in the third round young Len began to find the range with his right smashes to the head. Godih fought back well in the fourth, although he was twice knocked into the ropes with rights.

From then on Matthews' smashes began to take their effect, although Godih rallied desperately in the sixth. In the seventh, Matthews floored Godih with a right to the chin. The Algerian went down on his haunches but was up at the count of two and took the rest of the mandatory eight-count on his feet.

Matthews took the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds on the score sheets of all three ring officials, but Godih again rallied remarkably to take the 10th on all three sheets.

TRA Book Contains Jamaica's Obituary

The obituary of a race track is included in the 1960 edition of the TRA Directory and Record Book which was distributed this week.

The 103 page booklet gives data on all of the TRA member tracks and includes the final figures, stakes results and records of Jamaica, the egg-shaped course which passed out of the racing picture on August 1, 1959 at the age of 56.

With the sale of the Jamaica property to the city of New York, for a housing project pending, the words of the late Joe H. Palmer, writing of similar circumstances on the dismantling of the old Lexington track were recalled. Palmer observed that "the dust which had felt the beat of more than a century of racing hooves is now periodically washed from the faces of slightly underprivileged children."

By C. V. BURNS

EDDIE BRENNAN

EDWARD J. "Eddie" Brennan was honored by the Jockey Agents Guild as racing's man of the year at a banquet the other day in the Carillon Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla.

Brennan got off to a flustered start in his acceptance speech when one of the scantily clad nymphs popped out of the wings and gave him a lusty lip-stick smeared buzz.

Joe Williams, the noted sports columnist, said: "This was not the first time Eddie has been mistaken for Cary Grant."

Brennan, beginning his 50th year in racing, a career which has seen him function in every capacity save training and riding, helped formulate the regulations under which jockey agents now operate, including the highly important one which restricts one agent to two jockeys, one journeyman rider and one apprentice rider.

Previously there had been no restriction either as to the number of jockeys an agent could represent or the number of agents a jockey could have.

Brennan was racing secretary for the Cumberland Fair Association for 21 years, commencing with the first five-day meeting at Fairgrove in 1925. Eddie is now vice president and general manager at Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N. J.

JAMES W. GOLDSWORTHY, principal of Keyser High School, has advised the Potomac Valley Conference that he will not accept the nomination for any office in the conference for the next school term.

This means the P.V.C. will elect a new secretary-treasurer at its next session February 28 at Burlington, W.Va.

Mr. Goldsworthy has served as secretary of the 19-school circuit for the past eight years and has done a commendable job.

"I am grateful for the opportunity to have served as secretary for the past eight years," Goldsworthy stated. "I have enjoyed the work and I certainly appreciate the many courtesies extended me."

Bowie Track Cancels Plans For 10 Races

Commission Had No Power To Add Race

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Bowie Race Track cancelled its plans to run a 10-race card Saturday after the Maryland attorney general ruled Friday the State Racing Commission does not have the power to grant a tenth race under existing laws.

Bowie had planned to expand four of its programs from nine to 10 races to make up four races lost last Saturday because of a snowstorm.

Roy Cohn's Group Granted License To Promote Bouts

Feature Sports, Inc., May Stage Fistic Shows In New York

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Cohn's new boxing group, Feature Sports, Inc., was granted a license to promote in New York State Friday. A club official said the promoters hope to hold the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title rematch June 22 at New York's Polo Grounds.

Jack Fugazy, managing director of Feature Sports, said he would be disappointed if the rematch of last June's fight did not draw 1½ million dollars at the gate with tickets priced at $100 tops. He said the matter of home TV or closed circuit TV would be discussed later.

Although Fugazy said he hoped to hold the fight in New York, he left the door open in case of further complications. He said he had guarantees from two unidentified cities to stage the fight.

Fugazy said the only obstacle to holding the fight in New York was what he called "the attorney general's suitcase." Presumably he meant the antitrust proceedings announced today against several groups, including Feature Sports as the successor to Rosensohn Enterprises, Inc., as a result of the first fight. The attorney general also claims back taxes are due the state on theater TV and movie rights.

"We think we can wind up our litigation with the attorney general's office," said Tom Bolan, a

Big Three Of Racing Vie Today

Sword Dancer, Bald Eagle, On-And-On Seek $79,900 Purse

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—The "big three"—Sword Dancer, Bald Eagle and On-And-On—plus five others lined up Friday for Saturday's 23rd running of the $100,000-added Widener Handicap at Hialeah.

Off his record as 1959 horse of the year, Sword Dancer drew slight favoritism from the handicappers, trainers and clockers, but was expected to be nearly an equal betting choice with Bald Eagle of a crowd that may top 30,000. The overnight line listed Sword Dancer and Bald Eagle both at 8-5, with On-And-On at 5-2.

Assigned High Weight

Sword Dancer was assigned high weight of 129 pounds and drew the unfavorable outside starting position in the eight-horse field. The little chestnut colt, with Eddie Arcaro flying in from California to ride, will run as an entry with his Brookmeade stablemate, Oligarchy, winner of the 1957 Widener.

The lineup, in post position order for the mile and one-quarter race — first of Florida's four "hundred granders": Dunc, 118 pounds, with Johnny Sellers as probable rider; Bald Eagle, 123, Manuel Ycaza; Noble Sel, 106, Hedley Woodhouse; On-And-On, 119, Steve Brooks; Day Court, 117, Bill Hartack; Talent Show, 118, Bob Ussery; Oligarchy, 113, Johnny Rotz, and Sword Dancer, 129, Arcaro.

If Eight Start

If all eight start, the winner will collect $79,700 out of a total purse of $126,000. Victory would move Sword Dancer from 18th place to 11th on the all-time money winning list with total earnings of $677,485.

The race will be televised in color and broadcast nationally (NBC) beginning at 4:30 p.m. e.s.t.

Sinking 45 out of 71 shots for a mark of 62 per cent, Potomac State College's Catamounts routed Hagerstown Junior College by the score of 110-34 yesterday at Suitland (Md.) High School and advanced into the semi-final round of the third annual Tri-State Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Potomac State's opponent Saturday at 10 a.m., will be Baltimore Junior College which advanced yesterday afternoon by beating Wesley College of Dover, Del., in the first opening round contest by the score of 26-65.

The other semi-finalists in Saturday's noon game were to be the winners of last night's contests between Montgomery and Harford and Prince Georges and Shenandoah. The championship game is scheduled at 9 p.m., preceded by a consolation game at 7 o'clock.

Hagerstown suffered its third straight defeat at the hands of the Catamounts this season and in each game the Keyser team scored more than 100 points. The scores of the other games were 113-67 and 116-39.

The West Virginians doubled the score on Coach Irv Easterday's Hub City quint in the first half which ended with the score 44-22.

Coach Lough sent his entire squad of 14 players into action and twelve crashed the scoring column, hooping 45 goals and converting 20 of 32 shots at the charity line. Bowie Track Cancels Plans For 10 Races

Commission Had No Power To Add Race

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Bowie Race Track cancelled its plans to run a 10-race card Saturday after the Maryland attorney general ruled Friday the State Racing Commission does not have the power to grant a tenth race under existing laws.

Bowie had planned to expand four of its programs from nine to 10 races to make up four races lost last Saturday because of a snowstorm.

Plans called for 10 races Saturday, next Monday and the two succeeding Saturdays.

After the ruling by Attorney General C. Ferdinand Sybert, Racing Secretary John P. Turner cancelled Saturday's ninth race with the tenth race becoming the final event.

The feature race will be the $12,500 Burch Memorial Handicap. Mrs. Edith L. Price's Yes You Will, winner of the opening day, Abraham Lincoln Stakes, will be the favorite for the 6-furlong dash despite carrying top weight of 119 pounds.

Roy Cohn's Group Granted License To Promote Bouts

Feature Sports, Inc., May Stage Fistic Shows In New York

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Cohn's new boxing group, Feature Sports, Inc., was granted a license to promote in New York State Friday. A club official said the promoters hope to hold the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title rematch June 22 at New York's Polo Grounds.

Jack Fugazy, managing director of Feature Sports, said he would be disappointed if the rematch of last June's fight did not draw 1½ million dollars at the gate with tickets priced at $100 tops. He said the matter of home TV or closed circuit TV would be discussed later.

Although Fugazy said he hoped to hold the fight in New York, he left the door open in case of further complications. He said he had guarantees from two unidentified cities to stage the fight.

Fugazy said the only obstacle to holding the fight in New York was what he called "the attorney general's suitcase." Presumably he meant the antitrust proceedings announced today against several groups, including Feature Sports as the successor to Rosensohn Enterprises, Inc., as a result of the first fight. The attorney general also claims back taxes are due the state on theater TV and movie rights.

"We think we can wind up our litigation with the attorney general's office," said Tom Bolan, a

Six Highest Paid Detroit Tigers Still Unsigned

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—General Manager Rick Ferrell of the Detroit Tigers announced the signing of three reserve players Friday but admitted he has "no chance" of getting all his top-line stars in line by the March 1 start of spring training.

The signing of infielder Cool Veal, pitcher Al Pehanick from Toronto, and 18-year-old outfielder Andy Kosco, a $65,000 bonus player signed last June, were announced Friday.

But the list of unsigned Tigers includes the club's six highest paid players. They are outfielders Harvey Kuenn (the American League batting champion), Al Kaline, and Charley Maxwell, infielders Frank Bolling and Eddie Yost, and pitcher Frank Lary.

Nine other Tigers are still outside the fold, making a total of 15 unsigned.

Sword Dancer, Bald Eagle, On-And-On Seek $79,900 Purse

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—The "big three"—Sword Dancer, Bald Eagle and On-And-On—plus five others lined up Friday for Saturday's 23rd running of the $100,000-added Widener Handicap at Hialeah.

Off his record as 1959 horse of the year, Sword Dancer drew slight favoritism from the handicappers, trainers and clockers, but was expected to be nearly an equal betting choice with Bald Eagle of a crowd that may top 30,000. The overnight line listed Sword Dancer and Bald Eagle both at 8-5, with On-And-On at 5-2.

Assigned High Weight

Sword Dancer was assigned high weight of 129 pounds and drew the unfavorable outside starting position in the eight-horse field. The little chestnut colt, with Eddie Arcaro flying in from California to ride, will run as an entry with his Brookmeade stablemate, Oligarchy, winner of the 1957 Widener.

The lineup, in post position order for the mile and one-quarter race—first of Florida's four "hundred granders": Duncie, 118 pounds, with Johnny Sellers as probable rider; Bald Eagle, 123, Manuel Ycaza; Noble Sel, 106, Hedley Woodhouse; On-And-On, 119, Steve Brooks; Day Court, 117, Bill Hartack; Talent Show, 118, Bob Ussery; Oligarchy, 113, Johnny Rotz, and Sword Dancer, 129, Arcaro.

If Eight Start

If all eight start, the winner will collect $79,700 out of a total purse of $126,000. Victory would move Sword Dancer from 18th place to 11th on the all-time money winning list with total earnings of $677,465.

The race will be televised in color and broadcast nationally (NBC) beginning at 4:30 p.m. e.s.t.

Hialeah officials will honor "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons as dean of American thoroughbred trainers in a public ceremony. The 85-year-old "Mr. Fitz" will be saluted for his 75 years connection with the sport and his 60 years as a trainer.

Also expected to help draw the largest crowd of the season is the appearance in a prep race of Bally Ache, early favorite for next week's $100,000-added Flamingo Stakes.

Nelson Fox Agrees To Contract Terms

CHICAGO (UPI)—Nelson Fox, the American League's most valuable player in 1959, has agreed to terms for this year's contract with the Chicago White Sox, Hank Greenberg, Sox vice president, announced Friday.

Fox will be starting his 11th season as a White Sox regular. Last season he led the club in hitting with a .306 average in 156 games. He also led the club in total hits with 191, in total bases with 243, most doubles with 34 and fewest strikeouts with 13.

Fox is the 28th White Sox player to come to terms, leaving 11 players still unsigned.

Marr has never won a tournament but he played steadier golf in a treacherous desert dust and windstorm than some of the games biggest names for his 65-133. This was seven-under par for the 6,413-yard, par 70 El Rio Country Club course.

By TED SMITH

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Sixten Jernberg, Sweden's skiing king, and Canada's champion figure skating pair, Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul, won the first gold medals Friday in the eighth Winter Olympics. The United States got its first medal—a bronze.

Jernberg, a 31-year-old ski salesman, captured the 30-kilometer (18 miles, 1,000 yards) cross-country ski race in 1 hour, 51 minutes and 3 seconds. Americans, as expected, finished far back.

Unanimous Choices

Miss Wagner and Paul, the latter a onetime polo victim, were unanimous choices over a flashy field in the figure skating event.

The silver second place medal went to Mariika Kilus and Hans Baumer of Germany, the European champions, and the third place bronze to Nancy and Ronald Ludington of Roxbury, Mass. Another U.S. pair, Maribel Owen and Duley Richards of Boston, finished tenth.

They were the day's only finals. Three games were scheduled later in the round robin ice hockey tournament with the United States and Czechoslovakia clashing at 4 p.m. in the feature match.

A bright sun lit the mountain-rimmed valley for the start of competition but the sparse attendance indicated that these games were doomed to financial failure even if they achieve artistic success.

Only 1,000 See Race

Scarcely 1,000 saw the cross-country race, an event that draws 50,000 in Europe. Little more than 2,000 were in Blyth Arena for the figure skating.

Finishing back of Jernberg in the ski race was Rolf Ramgard, a 25-year-old Swedish lumberjack who took the silver medal in the time of 1:51:16.9. Nikolai Ankin of Russia was third in 1:52:23.2.

Mack Miller of Crested Butte, Colo., did best for the United States with 27th place in 2:03:05.4.

Although only individual championships are counted in the Olympics, the unofficial score kept on a basis of 10 points for first, with 5.4, 3.2, 1 for the other places, showed Sweden in front at the end of the first day with 17 points, followed by Canada 15, Russia 8, Germany 7, United States 4, Finland 1.

Pitt, West Virginia Play In Morgantown

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—All-American Jerry West will make his final varsity appearance Saturday night when West Virginia closes its regular-season schedule against Pitt.

The 5th ranked Mountaineers will be after their 21st victory against only four setbacks this season.

Card Of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my friends and neighbors who were so kind and sympathetic to me during my recent bereavement, the death of my beloved wife, Florence P. Smith. I especially wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral and the pallbearers. To all others who in any manner rendered assistance, I am indeed grateful.
FRANK W. SMITH.

Bean Names Crime Board

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Senate President Ralph J. Bean Friday named five members to the West Virginia Crime Study Commission set up at the recent session of the Legislature.

Selected were Senate Majority Leader Clarence E. Martin (D-Berkeley) and Sens. J. Horner Davis (D-Kanawha), William A. Moreland (D-Monongalia), Harry E. Moats (R-Ritchie) and Arlen L. Reed (R-Preston).

The 10-member committee, including five members from the House of Delegates, was activated by a legislative resolution. An initial meeting date has not been scheduled. The committee will determine how it will conduct its investigation.

House members include Del. Charles Armistead (D-Monongalia), J. C. Cruikshank (D-Clay), John Goshorn (D-Kanawha), George Rairden (R-Mason) and Sprigg Smith (R-Tyler).

Construction foreman in Oakland, yesterday began to work their way from Bloomington to Oakland, repairing broken wire and crossarms on poles. This is the main toll lead from Oakland to Cumberland.

Extra operators were called to the local office yesterday to handle the heavy volume of calls. Normally, about 16,000 calls are handled from 9 to 11 a. m. but yesterday there were 27,000 during this period.

Power service in the Cumberland district was in good shape last night with the exception of the Clearville, Pa. area.

Garland L. Johnston, district manager of the Potomac Edison Company, said line crews were unable to get into the area last night since roads were blocked.

He said the men, who had worked from Thursday at 8 a. m. until dark last night, were worn out and were sent home to get some rest before they report for duty this morning.

A skeleton crew composed of five men who did not work Thursday night was still on hand last night to take care of emergency work.

Cumberland, which was lashed by terrific rain and wind but escaped the brunt of the snowstorm, suffered very little power trouble but considerable repair work was needed in outlying districts.

In all, about 1,200 customers were affected in the Cumberland District during the height of the storm.

In the Frostburg district, crews by last night had restored all but about 10 per cent of the power interruptions.

Edward L. Ewald, district manager, said parts of Clarysville, Eckhart, Hoffman, Shaft and Midlothian were still affected.

Normal service was reported in Frostburg, where the West End was without power for several hours during the night.

All but a few line workers, those who had not reported for duty Thursday morning, were sent home to rest for a few hours.

Service in Garrett County had been restored in almost all areas, except for Shelbyport, last night. Officials hoped to restore service there during the night.

Officials reported the county had generally less trouble from power interruptions than the rest of the area but that roads were almost impassable.

In the Romney area, a lot of customers were still out of power last night as the wind storm continued in full force.

In spite of progress in restoring service, parts of the Slanesville and Levels area were still not fully restored. Most of the rest of the trouble involved isolated cases.

A crew was still working last night to restore service to customers in the Lost River Valley but all but two other crews had been recalled for the night.

Line crews were hampered by communications failures and lines were still being taken down by falling tree limbs.

Officials said they hope to clear up the situation today.

Two Men Named To Staff Of Amcelle Plant

The appointment of Malcolm R. Stauffer and Alvin K. Kar Jr. to the staff of the Amcelle plant of Celanese Fibers Company was announced yesterday by Hudson Nix, industrial relations manager.

Mr. Stauffer has joined the cost department of the accounting section. A native of Hanover, Pa., he received his B.S. degree in business administration from Pennsylvania State University.

He is an Army veteran and was stationed for two years in the Pacific area. Prior to this, he had been employed by Metropolitan Edison Company, York, Pa., in the auditing department. Mr. Stauffer and his wife, Shirley, now live at 65 Broadway, Frostburg.

Mr. Kar, a native of Charleston, W. Va., has been assigned to the purchasing section as buyer. He received his B.S. degree in business administration from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1953. After graduation he entered the Army and was discharged in 1959 with the rank of second lieutenant. Before coming to the local plant, he was employed as special agent for the Prudential Insurance Company.

He is married and has two daughters, age 4 and 2. He will move his family to Cumberland as soon as he can arrange for suitable housing and is temporarily located at 502 Rose Hill Avenue.

Passengers

med into the rear of a work train.

The Connecticut man, en route to Cumberland from Connellsville, said he was seated at a table with three other passengers in the front section of the two-unit self-propelled train when the crash occurred about 2:25 p.m.

Everyone on the train was shocked by the sudden impact and derailment of the front unit, according to Mr. Early, who was seated with his back to the front of the train.

After the crash, something struck him in the mouth, breaking off a number of his teeth and cracking his glasses. He noticed the train had not been traveling fast at the time.

Many Were Standing

A large number of passengers, he said, were standing due to the crowded conditions on the crack Speedliner. He was in the section which included a combination diner and coach.

Eleven of the passengers were taken off the train and removed to the Myersdale Community Hospital. Mr. Early, who is 61, remained on the train but got off at Cumberland, where he was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital.

He sustained an injury to his nose and left cheek and also injuries to his mouth. Last night he was in "satisfactory" condition.

Mr. Early, who sells newspaper supplies, was coming to Cumberland to confer with officials of the Times and Alleganian Company. He has been traveling to Cumberland for about 26 years and this was his first mishap on a passenger train, he said.

High Points Hit

While downtown Cumberland streets were bare, there was ice and snow on many streets in the residential areas at higher elevations. On Johnson Heights, part of North Cumberland and on the high points of the West Side, residents reported that some streets last night were a glaze of ice. Street crews had cleared and salted main arteries, but side and connecting streets caused trouble.

Early Friday morning there was widespread damage in the city from high winds. Windows were broken, garage doors were torn loose, many roofs were damaged, scores of garbage cans were blown away, and one West Side resident reported a dog house containing his dog was carried about 50 feet. The dog was uninjured. In the same neighborhood several trees and shrubs were damaged.

In South Cumberland, a large window in a drug store was blown out and several service stations reported damage to signs and doors.

But despite this high wind, Cumberland fared favorably compared to the rest of the area. There was 1.29 inches of rain, only slight snowflurries, but temperatures were below freezing during the night and day.

Schools in the entire county were closed because of the cold wind and icy conditions, and the fact that roads in the area were impassable for school buses and other traffic.

At the local Post Office, mail generally consigned to star routes and truck routes to adjacent communities was piling up as reports came in that roadways were impassable. This was one time when the mail did not go through immediately.

Absenteeism at local industries was reported as high as 20 per cent in many departments. Retail stores, courts and other offices reported very little business during most of yesterday.

The howling blizzard, obviously broken up by the hills and mountains which surround all of Cumberland and Ridgeley, raged generally at all points of the compass.

Speedliner Strikes Work Train

12 In Hospital After Crash At Sand Patch

Undaunted

Clifford J. Early of Hamden, Conn., leaves the B&O Daylight Speedliner at Queen City Station here after the train hit a work train at Sand Patch, Pa. Mr. Early had face injuries, but managed a smile for the photographer before checking into a local hospital for treatment.

Passengers On Speedliner Give Account Of Accident

Three former local athletes who are attending the University of Pittsburgh and a Connecticut man traveling to Cumberland on business were among those who escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when the B&O Speedliner crashed at Sand Patch, Pa.

Pension Bill Is Introduced

The Allegany County Delegation yesterday introduced a bill in the General Assembly which would allow employees of Miners Hospital, Frostburg, to retain their state pensions.

It was introduced as House Bill 141 and was referred to the Rules Committee.

Del. Fred B. Driscoll, chairman of the delegation, said the bill would benefit classified employees of the hospital if it were taken over by a private or non-profit corporation.

The bill, he said, would make it possible for present classified employees of the hospital to maintain their state retirement status provided the required payments were made by the worker and his new employer.

Members of the Allegany County Delegation and Garrett County Delegates Leslie E. Savage and Eliza E. Bray are the sponsors of a bill designed to allow Frank J. Powers to continue as director of the Bureau of Mines until June 1, 1962.

The two-year extension is sought in House Bill 108. A similar bill was enacted several years ago to allow Mr. Powers to continue to serve past retirement age.

Mr. Driscoll said there is agreement in Western Maryland that Mr. Powers is doing a good job and that all affected want him to continue.

Sponsors are being secured, Mr. Driscoll said, for a state-wide bill to exempt non-profit labor temples used for meeting purposes from property taxes.

The bill, he explained, would put labor unions in the same class as fraternal organizations.

It was reported that all members of the Allegany County Delegation will be included in the list of sponsors.

Cumberlander Injured; One Car Derails

Twelve persons, including a local man, were hospitalized yesterday afternoon with injuries sustained when the crack eastbound B&O Passenger Train 22 (The Daylight Speedliner) crashed into the rear of a work train at Sand Patch, Pa., about 34 miles west of here on the Pittsburgh Division of the railroad.

Three of the passengers on the crowded two-unit, self-propelled train were taken by ambulance to Meyersdale Community Hospital in critical condition, although last night two of them had been taken off the critical list.

Still in critical condition at the hospital is Michael Sam, 47, of West Newton, Pa.

Mrs. Ethel Johnson, 50, of 1241 Bentlow Street, Baltimore, and Earl Adams, 55, of Piedmont Avenue, Baltimore, were taken off the critical list last night and are now in "fair" condition, attaches said.

Those in "fair" and "good" condition at the same hospital are Mrs. Ellen Watkins, 26, of Stafford Spring, Conn.; George Thomas, 38, of 535 Columbia Street, Cumberland; Anna Foster, 62, 4239 Pennsylvania Avenue, Pittsburgh; Anna M. La-Severe, 75, of 1815 Knoll Street, East Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Paul Conner, 53, of Elwood City, Pa.; Louise Croft, 58, of 14512 Beechwood Street, Cleveland, Ohio; and Paul Sanders, 55, of 119 Oak Street, Baltimore.

Genevieve Conti, of 1213 North Negley Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., had been taken to the hospital but was later released and went back to Pittsburgh.

Carried on Stretchers

The injured had to be carried on stretchers nearly a mile in deep snow to ambulances which were unable to get any closer to the accident scene.

The victims were removed to the hospital in ambulances from Meyersdale and Berlin, Pa.

Volunteer firemen of Corriganville received a call for their ambulance yesterday afternoon but were unable to get past Wellersburg, Pa., due to the road conditions and decided to return to the fire hall.

Clifford J. Early, 61, of Hamden, Conn., who was en route to Cumberland from Connellsville, was injured and admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital here for observation. He sustained injuries to his mouth, nose and left cheek.

Mrs. Dallas Hobson of 405 Pennsylvania Avenue, Salisbury, Md., went to the local hospital but after talking with a physician was advised she could continue her journey to Baltimore.

Engineer Hurt

L. S. May, Connellsville, Pa., engineer on the two-unit train, was injured in the crash and decided to ride westbound Train 21 to Connellsville where he planned to check in at a hospital. He was reportedly not hurt badly. Train 21 left Cumberland about 1:20 p.m. yesterday and was traveling west toward Pittsburgh.

Train 22, en route from Pittsburgh to Baltimore, normally arrives in Cumberland at 2:47 p.m. The collision according to a railroad spokesman, occurred at 2:25 p.m. and blocked the road's eastbound track. The westbound track was clear, according to the spokesman who said the front unit of Train 22 derailed. No one in the work train unit was hurt.

The spokesman said the crew of the work train was repairing lines knocked out by a two-foot snowfall which hit the Sand Patch area on the crest of the Allegheny Mountains between Confluence and Cumberland.

Relief Train From City

A relief train left Cumberland about 4 p.m. and went to the scene of the accident. Meanwhile two passenger coaches and two diesel units were made up in Cumberland and were being readied to go to the scene.

Oakland Street Scene

Parked cars are nearly covered by plowed snow on a main street in Oakland, where about two feet of snow fell Thursday night and yesterday. Traffic was still moving on principal streets, but several drivers got stuck in snow drifts on side streets. Many motorists also were marooned on highways and secondary roads as high winds piled drifts several feet deep.

Bill Proposes College Help For Talented

Del. Conlon Is One Of Sponsors

A fresh approach to Maryland's scholarship program is offered in a bill co-sponsored by Del. Thomas F. Conlon Jr., Allegany County Democrat.

The plan, included in House Bill 60, would offer scholarships covering tuition to talented youths who, because of financial needs, would be deprived of a college education.

Del. Conlon said the bill is now in the House Ways and Means committee and has the required 25 sponsors to bring it to the floor for debate.

Top Cost $800,000

The Allegany County legislator said he hopes the bill can be passed this year.

During its first year it would provide scholarships to Maryland colleges, up to a maximum of $500 a year for 200 students, and would require a $100,000 appropriation.

In the fourth year, the program would cover 800 students and reach a peak cost of $800,000.

The bill provides that candidates for the scholarships are restricted to eligible high school graduates recommended for college by their principals and "whose financial need, and/or the financial condition of whose parents or guardian" meet requirements set up by the State Department of Education.

Must Show Need

Sponsors point out that "definite financial need" shall be a requirement and must be based on the taxable family income and financial resources of the applicant and family included in his immediate household.

Each four-year scholarship would pay a maximum of $500 a year to the institution.

Allegany County would be eligible for seven scholarships, awarded to those who received the highest grades. An additional 48 scholarships would be available in the state at large and to those who received the highest grades.

Sanner Is Named To C Of C Board

C. M. Sanner, secretary of the George F. Hazelwood Company, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He will fill the vacancy created by the death of Joseph M. Miller and will serve until June 30, 1962.

Five Stranded Travelers Rescued From Church

Broke Into Chapel After Cars Stalled

Grantsville volunteer firemen rescued them from Zion Church, about seven miles west of Frostburg on U. S. 40, after another member of the party hitched a ride into Frostburg for help.

Raymond S. Rudolph of East Riverdale told Frostburg firemen he and his brother-in-law were driving west on U. S. 40 toward Shinnston, W. Va., early yesterday when they spotted the stranded car of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heodreth of Delaware about four miles west of Frostburg.

Inside were Mr. and Mrs. Hoedreth and their two children, four months and 17 months old.

Rudolph and his brother-in-law tried to drive the family to a garage, but their car stalled near the church. They broke into the church and started a fire in a small heating stove.

Then Rudolph hitched a ride on a truck and told Frostburg firemen of the family's plight. John Sleeman and Joseph Durst tried to drive through the heavy snow but had to turn back.

They called Grantsville firemen, who sent out cars and an ambulance driven by Henry Durst, chief, and Don Newman, Jonas McKenzie, William Lewis and William Blocher.

The firemen rescued the family and took their car into Grantsville, where they intended to stay until the roads could be made safe for travel.

Firemen said none of the travelers suffered any apparent ill effects.

Guest speaker will be E. Wade Thomas, of Keyser, assistant fire marshal of West Virginia. Toastmaster will be Ralph M. Race of Frostburg.

Rev. James E. Perry, pastor of LaVale Methodist Church, will give the invocation.

A number of guests of the Allegany Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association and members of the county government will be present.

A memorial service for the deceased members of the company will be a highlight of the evening's program.

Fire Chief James Loar will give his report and the "Fireman-of-the-Year" of the company will be announced.

Youth Commission Will Meet Today

The Allegany County Youth Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the office of the Maryland Department of Employment Security.

The program will include a report on the progress of legislation being considered by the General Assembly.

City Spared Worst Of Blizzard Which Blankets Tri-State

BULLETIN

Romney State Police said late last night that US Route 50 from the bottom of Allegheny Front to beyond Mt. Storm was closed due to excessive drifting.

At Bedford, Pa., State Police reported "no traffic moving west." The Turnpike and all other highways were closed. Police said the Turnpike would remain closed west of Bedford until after daylight.

Cumberland was like an oasis in a desert yesterday, except that the thermometer was upside down as Old Man Winter lowered the boom on the Tri-State Area.

In downtown Cumberland, where streets were bare and dry, it was difficult for many to believe that almost within sight, people were stranded, communications were disrupted, traffic was stalled on highways and even the usually reliable railroads were having difficulty.

Snow within six or seven miles of the city was up to three feet in depth, with drifts up to five feet.

On Long Stretch, west of Frostburg on U. S. Route 40 last night, State Police and state road crews reported 12 to 15 cars stranded by high drifts which blocked the roadway.

Early yesterday afternoon, State Police requested the State Roads Commission to close Route 40 west of Frostburg, and the highway was closed for some time. State roads crews went through with large snow plows and opened most of the route to Grantsville. However, high winds soon drifted it closed again.

The State Roads Commission office here reported last night that a large rotary plow was working in the Accident area of Garrett County, another was between Frostburg and Grantsville, and a third was on the way in from Washington County. In addition, all available road trucks and crews were in the area, plus a big "V" plow, in an effort to keep the highway open.

Both the highway department and the State Police were co-operating in the struggle against the elements.

Emergency Communications

Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of LaVale State Police barracks said last night that radio communications had been disrupted, but an emergency setup had been arranged. A State Police cruiser and operator was stationed outside the barracks. He was in constant communication with another cruiser on top of Big Savage Mountain. A state roads truck, radio-equipped, was stationed on top of Dans Mountain. Thus it was possible to maintain emergency communications.

Lt. O'Hara said all available men are on duty and that every effort is being made to prevent loss of life and minimize suffering.

He said he had reports of 12 to 15 cars stranded between Frostburg and Grantsville, most

Bus Passengers Get Train Ride To Pittsburgh

A wayward Greyhound bus, balked on its westbound schedule to Pittsburgh Pa., pulled up to the Queen City Station yesterday afternoon and transferred its 12 passengers to B&O Train No. 9, scheduled to leave at 6 p.m.

The bus had arrived here about 3:45 p.m. A spokesman at the Valley Street bus station said last night that eastbound bus schedules between here and Baltimore and Washington were being maintained but the weather had halted all bus traffic to the west.

Resumption of the west-bound schedule is expected today. Train No. 9 was late in leaving here because it had to wait for the conductor who was aboard the eastbound Speedliner involved in the Sand Patch, Pa., accident yesterday afternoon.

Oakland Has Snow, Snow, More Snow

OAKLAND, Md. (AP) — It snowed in Oakland Friday. In fact, it had been snowing, snowing and snowing like every other place in Western Maryland.

It's not unusual this time of the winter up here in the hills.

But if it keeps up, things could get a bit rough for Garrett countians more or less immune to the rigors of the season.

"It's about four feet deep right outside the office," reported Deputy Sheriff Bruce Close. "I know. I've been trying to keep the sidewalk clear."

"I'd say it's around 33 or 34 inches deep out in the open. And it sure is drifting."

"Traffic's light in town. There are very few cars moving."

"The school is closed."

"Most of the stores are closed, too. There's no business. Not many people on the streets."

"But it could be worse. However, if it keeps on snowing and blowing we could be in for some trouble."

"No, there hasn't been a report of what you'd call a real hardship case, but we've been getting a number of calls to relay messages from one family to another."

Close did note that the two-way communication radio out of Sheriff James E. Frantz' headquarters with State Police was down. There had been some trouble at the transmitting tower up on a mountain nearby. The storm had fouled up things.

State Roads Commission crews were fighting drifts trying to open U.S. 219 linking the town with U.S. 40 to the north and U.S. 50 to the south. It was blocked in a number of spots.

The other roads in and out of the town were a mass of snow. They will be opened as soon as they can.

Secondary routes were impassable. They will remain blocked until the weather moderates.

In the meantime, Oaklandites don't seem to be worried. It's happened before and will happen again.

Speedliner Strikes Work Train

12 In Hospital After Crash At Sand Patch

Cumberlander Injured; One Car Derails

Twelve persons, including a local man, were hospitalized yesterday afternoon with injuries sustained when the crack eastbound B&O Passenger Train 22 (The Daylight Speedliner) crashed into the rear of a work train at Sand Patch, Pa., about 34 miles west of here on the Pittsburgh Division of the railroad.

Three of the passengers on the crowded two-unit, self-propelled train were taken by ambulance to Meyersdale Community Hospital in critical condition, although last night two of them had been taken off the critical list.

Still in critical condition at the hospital is Michael Sam, 47, of West Newton, Pa.

Mrs. Ethel Johnson, 50, of 1241 Bentlow Street, Baltimore, and Earl Adams, 55, of Piedmont Avenue, Baltimore, were taken off the critical list last night and are now in "fair" condition, attaches said.

Those in "fair" and "good" condition at the same hospital are Mrs. Ellen Watkins, 26, of Stafford Spring, Conn.; George Thomas, 38, of 535 Columbia Street, Cumberland; Anna Foster, 62, 4239 Pennsylvania Avenue, Pittsburgh; Anna M. LaSevere, 75, of 1815 Knoll Street, East Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Paul Conner, 53, of Elwood City, Pa.; Louise Croft, 58, of 14512 Beechwood Street, Cleveland, Ohio; and Paul Sanders, 55, of 119 Oak Street, Baltimore.

Genevieve Confi, of 1213 North Negley Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., had been taken to the hospital but was later released and went back to Pittsburgh.

Carried on Stretchers

The injured had to be carried on stretchers nearly a mile in deep snow to ambulances which were unable to get any closer to the accident scene.

The victims were removed to the hospital in ambulances from Meyersdale and Berlin, Pa.

Volunteer firemen of Corriganville received a call for their ambulance yesterday afternoon but were unable to get past Wellersburg, Pa., due to the road conditions and decided to return to the fire hall.

Clifford J. Early, 61, of Hamden, Conn., who was en route to Cumberland from Connellsville, was injured and admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital here for observation. He sustained injuries to his mouth, nose and left cheek.

Mrs. Dallas Hobson of 405 Pennsylvania Avenue, Salisbury, Md., went to the local hospital but after talking with a physician was advised she could continue her journey to Baltimore.

Engineer Hurt

L. S. May, Connellsville, Pa., engineer on the two-unit train, was injured in the crash and decided to ride westbound Train 21 to Connellsville where he planned to check in at a hospital. He was reportedly not hurt badly. Train 21 left Cumberland about 1:20 p.m. yesterday and was traveling west toward Pittsburgh.

Train 22, en route from Pittsburgh to Baltimore, normally arrives in Cumberland at 2:47 p.m. The collision according to a railroad spokesman, occurred at 2:25 p.m. and blocked the road's eastbound track. The westbound track was clear, according to the spokesman who said the front unit of Train 22 derailed. No one in the work train unit was hurt.

The spokesman said the crew of the work train was repairing lines knocked out by a two-foot snowfall which hit the Sand Patch area on the crest of the Allegheny Mountains between Confluence and Cumberland.

Relief Train From City

A relief train left Cumberland about 4 p.m. and went to the scene of the accident. Meanwhile two passenger coaches and two diesel units were made up in Cumberland and were being readied to go to the scene.

Oakland Street Scene

Parked cars are nearly covered by plowed snow on a main street in Oakland, where about two feet of snow fell Thursday night and yesterday. Traffic was still moving on principal streets, but several drivers got stuck in snow drifts on side streets. Many motorists also were marooned on highways and secondary roads as high winds piled drifts several feet deep.

Bill Proposes College Help For Talented

A fresh approach to Maryland's scholarship program is offered in a bill co-sponsored by Del. Thomas F. Conlon Jr., Allegany County Democrat.

The plan, included in House Bill 60, would offer scholarships covering tuition to talented youths who, because of financial needs, would be deprived of a college education.

Del. Conlon said the bill is now in the House Ways and Means committee and has the required 25 sponsors to bring it to the floor for debate.

Top Cost $800,000

The Allegany County legislator said he hopes the bill can be passed this year.

During its first year it would provide scholarships to Maryland colleges, up to a maximum of $500 a year for 200 students, and would require a $100,000 appropriation.

In the fourth year, the program would cover 800 students and reach a peak cost of $800,000.

The bill provides that candidates for the scholarships are restricted to eligible high school graduates recommended for college by their principals and "whose financial need, and/or the financial condition of whose parents or guardian" meet requirements set up by the State Department of Education.

Must Show Need

Sponsors point out that "definite financial need" shall be a requirement and must be based on the taxable family income and financial resources of the applicant and family included in his immediate household.

Each four-year scholarship would pay a maximum of $500 a year to the institution.

Allegany County would be eligible for seven scholarships, awarded to those who received the highest grades. An additional 48 scholarships would be available in the state at large and to those who received the highest grades.

Sanner Is Named To C Of C Board

C. M. Sanner, secretary of the George F. Hazelwood Company, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He will fill the vacancy created by the death of Joseph M. Miller and will serve until June 30, 1962.

Five Stranded Travelers Rescued From Church

Broke Into Chapel After Cars Stalled

Five stranded travelers, including two small children, were rescued early yesterday from a Garrett County roadside church where they had taken refuge from a blizzard.

Grantsville volunteer firemen rescued them from Zion Church, about seven miles west of Frostburg on U. S. 40, after another member of the party hitched a ride into Frostburg for help.

Raymond S. Rudolph of East Riverdale told Frostburg firemen he and his brother-in-law were driving west on U. S. 40 toward Shinnston, W. Va., early yesterday when they spotted the stranded car of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heedreth of Delaware about four miles west of Frostburg.

Inside were Mr. and Mrs. Heedreth and their two children, four months and 17 months old.

Rudolph and his brother-in-law tried to drive the family to a garage, but their car stalled near the church. They broke into the church and started a fire in a small heating stove.

Then Rudolph hitched a ride on a truck and told Frostburg firemen of the family's plight. John Sleeman and Joseph Durst tried to drive through the heavy snow but had to turn back.

They called Grantsville firemen, who sent out cars and an ambulance driven by Henry Durst, chief, and Don Newman, Jonas McKenzie, William Lewis and William Blocher.

The firemen rescued the family and took their car into Grantsville, where they intended to stay until the roads could be made safe for travel.

Driver Escapes Injury In Crash

A LaVale man escaped serious injury here yesterday afternoon when the car he was driving skidded on the ice and hit a parked car.

He is Anthony Sylvester, 32, who was traveling north on Lee Street at Magruder at 3 p.m. when the car crossed the roadway and hit a parked car owned by John C. Kunis, 707 Virginia Avenue.

Police said the Kunis car was forced back and damaged the rear end of a car owned by George E. Weaver, 206 Reynolds Street.

Mr. Sylvester was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, where he was examined and released.

Symphony Trip Left In Doubt By Heavy Snows

Two scheduled appearances of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra in this area were left in doubt last night after heavy snows covered most of Maryland.

The orchestra is scheduled to play at Frostburg State Teachers College tomorrow afternoon, and at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at Fort Hill High School auditorium.

But unless the weather should moderate or unless roads and streets can be cleared, the Frostburg performance, at least, would have to be called off.

The orchestra expects to know by tonight whether it will be able to make its appearances here as planned.

Fire Company Notes Birthday

The LaVale Volunteer Fire Company will mark its 27th anniversary this evening with a dinner beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the fire hall.

Guest speaker will be E. Wade Thomas, of Keyser, assistant fire marshal of West Virginia. Toastmaster will be Ralph M. Race of Frostburg.

Rev. James E. Perry, pastor of LaVale Methodist Church, will give the invocation.

A number of guests of the Allegany Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association and members of the county government will be present.

A memorial service for the deceased members of the company will be a highlight of the evening's program.

Fire Chief James Loar will give his report and the "Fireman-of-the-Year" of the company will be announced.

Youth Commission Will Meet Today

The Allegany County Youth Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the office of the Maryland Department of Employment Security.

The program will include a report on the progress of legislation being considered by the General Assembly.

Wind, Drifts Halt Travel On US Rt. 40

BULLETIN

Romney State Police said late last night that US Route 50 from the bottom of Allegheny Front to beyond Mt. Storm was closed due to excessive drifting.

At Bedford, Pa., State Police reported "no traffic moving west." The Turnpike and all other highways were closed. Police said the Turnpike would remain closed west of Bedford until after daylight.

Cumberland was like an oasis in a desert yesterday, except that the thermometer was upside down as Old Man Winter lowered the boom on the Tri-State Area.

In downtown Cumberland, where streets were bare and dry, it was difficult for many to believe that almost within sight, people were stranded, communications were disrupted, traffic was stalled on highways and even the usually reliable railroads were having difficulty. Snow within six or seven miles of the city was up to three feet in depth, with drifts up to five feet.

On Long Stretch, west of Frostburg on U. S. Route 40 last night, State Police and state road crews reported 12 to 15 cars stranded by high drifts which blocked the roadway.

Early yesterday afternoon, State Police requested the State Roads Commission to close Route 40 west of Frostburg, and the highway was closed for some time. State roads crews went through with large snow plows and opened most of the route to Grantsville. However, high winds soon drifted it closed again.

The State Roads Commission office here reported last night that a large rotary plow was working in the Accident area of Garrett County, another was between Frostburg and Grantsville, and a third was on the way in from Washington County. In addition, all available road trucks and crews were in the area, plus a big "V" plow, in an effort to keep the highway open.

Both the highway department and the State Police were co-operating in the struggle against the elements.

Emergency Communications

Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of LaVale State Police barracks said last night that radio communications had been disrupted, but an emergency setup had been arranged. A State Police cruiser and operator was stationed outside the barracks. He was in constant communication with another cruiser on top of Big Savage Mountain. A state roads truck, radio-equipped, was stationed on top of Dans Mountain. Thus it was possible to maintain emergency communications.

The men managed to get through the snow early yesterday to work on toll circuits and became stranded after roads in the areas drifted shut. The men were able to get to nearby stores and got enough food for the night.

Four men were stranded at Accident, four others at Bittering, and three men were in the building at Kitzmiller.

The phone company said all toll circuits between Cumberland and Paw Paw, Levels, W. Va.; Moorefield, W. Va.; Johnstown, Pa.; Bedford, Pa.; Bedford Valley, Petersburg, W. Va.; and Clarksburg, W. Va., were still out of service last night.

Service also was partially impaired from Cumberland and Pittsburgh, Grantsville, Meyersdale, Pa., and Romney, W. Va.

Toll circuits from Oakland to Clarksburg, Uniontown, Pa.; Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Piedmont, W. Va., also were out of service last night.

Every available installer and repairman is helping to restore local service in Lonaconing, Midland, Barton, Frostburg, Cumberland, Mt. Savage, Flintstone and Oldtown.

Service between Cumberland and Oakland was established about 1 p.m. yesterday through Bittering, and additional toll circuits between these two points were expected to be restored during the night.

Company officials also said 22 poles were down in the two counties and repairmen were hampered because downed power lines were creating a hazard.

Abandon Jeep

C. A. Smith, Cumberland plant wire chief, and Frank Winterstein, central office repairman, left Cumberland at 3 a.m. yesterday for Bittering to help re-route circuits.

At 9 a.m. the two men had gotten two miles from Bittering by jeep and had to make it the rest of the way on foot. At 1 p.m. they established the service between Cumberland and Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady Mongold, RFD 2, Williams Road, a son yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Smith, RFD 1, Ridgeley, a son yesterday.

Undaunted

Clifford J. Early of Hamden, Conn., leaves the B&O Daylight Speedliner at Queen City Station here after the train hit a work train at Sand Patch, Pa. Mr. Early had face injuries, but managed a smile for the photographer before checking into a local hospital for treatment.

Passengers On Speedliner Give Account Of Accident

Three former local athletes who are attending the University of Pittsburgh and a Connecticut man traveling to Cumberland on business were among those who escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when the B&O Speedliner crashed at Sand Patch, Pa.

The local youths are Charles Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Robinson, 609 Kent Avenue; Leroy Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry, 205 South Street, and Jon "Wes" Hann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dory L. Hann, 49 Lamont Street.

The Robinson youth said he sustained an injury to his knee, the one he injured last fall while playing with the freshman team of the University of Pittsburgh.

"The Henry youth suffered a small laceration on the bridge of his nose and the Hann youth said he had a nose injury and wrenched his back.

Robinson said he and Hann had just left the section between the two cars and were fortunate to get seats just before the collision. He added the two coaches were very crowded and many persons were forced to stand in the aisle during the trip.

Henry was just about asleep when the trains hit. He said he was thrown forward against the seat in front of him and lost his glasses.

Help Injured

Hann, a senior in the school of pharmacy, and the Robinson and Henry youths, who are both freshmen, said they helped administer first aid to many of the people who sustained small cuts and bruises.

The youths, who all were seated in the second coach, said there was no warning prior to the crash.

Robinson and Henry both were members of the football and basketball teams at Fort Hill High School last year, and Hann was a member of the basketball team at Fort Hill several years ago. All three youths were on their way home for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry, who were waiting anxiously at the train station last night, said they called the university when they learned of the accident and received word that the three local youths were aboard the train.

A later call to the hospital at Meyersdale revealed that none of the youths was injured enough to be taken to the hospital.

Among the local passengers on the train was Leonard Petty, 21-year-old student at Pittsburgh School of Mortuary Science, who was coming home for a weekend visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross H. Petty, 105 Luteman Road. He sustained face and mouth injuries.

Clifford J. Early of Hamden, Conn., had just finished eating his dinner yesterday afternoon and was settling down to read a newspaper when the train ram-

Oakland Has Snow, Snow, More Snow

OAKLAND, Md. (AP) — It snowed in Oakland Friday. In fact, it had been snowing, snowing and snowing like every other place in Western Maryland.

It's not unusual this time of the winter up here in the hills.

But if it keeps up, things could get a bit rough for Garrett counties more or less immune to the rigors of the season.

"It's about four feet deep right outside the office," reported Deputy Sheriff Bruce Close. "I know. I've been trying to keep the sidewalk clear."

"I'd say it's around 33 or 34 inches deep out in the open. And it sure is drifting."

"Traffic's light in town. There are very few cars moving."

"The school is closed."

"Most of the stores are closed, too. There's no business. Not many people on the streets."

"But it could be worse. However, if it keeps on snowing and blowing we could be in for some trouble."

"No, there hasn't been an report of what you'd call a real hardship case, but we've been getting a number of calls to relay messages from one family to another."

Close did note that the two-way communication radio out of Sheriff James E. Frantz' headquarters with State Police was down. There had been some trouble at the transmitting tower up on a mountain nearby. The storm had fouled up things.

State Roads Commission crews were fighting drifts trying to open U.S. 219 linking the town with U.S. 40 to the north and U.S. 50 to the south. It was blocked in a number of spots.

The other roads in and out of the town were a mass of snow. They will be opened as soon as they can.

Secondary routes were impassable. They will remain blocked until the weather moderates.

In the meantime, Oaklandites don't seem to be worried. It's happened before and will happen again.

There's plenty of food in town. There's also plenty of fuel.

But if it doesn't stop snowing and blowing around here, it could get rough.
